Gompers Defends Striking Steel Men

WILSON ILL; QUITS TOUR

Charge Curtis' Order Left City Unguarded

BRITISH R.R. STRIKE IS ORDERED

London, Sept. 26.—The railmen will go on a national strike at midnight, it was announced today by J. H. Thomas, head of the National Union of Railwaymen.

It previously had been stated that progress was being made towards an adjustment of the trouble by the executive organization of the union and the Cabinet. The men are demanding standardization of wages, among other things.

A conference was held at the Premier's official residence in Downing street and the presence of the war and food ministers indicated that the government would make a stiff fight to maintain transportation service. Only the trainmen will go out, as the Amalgamated Society of Engineers did not join in the strike movement.

Men Must Have 'Day in Court,' Labor Head Tells Senators

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 26.—"The right of the employes to be heard through their own spokesmen."

"The right to have their day in court."

These are the issues in the steel strike, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, today told the Senate Committee investigating the steel strike.

The veteran labor leader charged that the foreigners among the strikers were imported by the companies especially to work in the mills, a practice which, he said, had been followed for twenty-five years.

The steel companies, Gompers asserted, have done everything to prevent the men from organizing, conducting a system of espionage and discharging employes who attended any meetings. And discharge from the mills, he added, meant that they were blacklisted from getting employment elsewhere.

GOMPERS TAKES STAND.

Gompers, on taking the stand, was told by Senator Kenyon that he might sit or stand during his testimony.

"Andthing but lay down," answered Gompers.

Gompers said he had no prepared statement and preferred to be questioned.

"What are the issues in this strike?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"The issue of the right of the employe to be heard through their own ployes to be heard through their own choosing; the right to have their day in court, the court to determine wages

PUT RIOT BLAME ON CURTIS

Organizer Frank H. McCarthy, spokesman for the American Federation of Labor, was asked on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and today what that body intended to do for the striking Boston police. His reply on the first three occasions was: "I have nothing to say whatsoever!"

Today he answered: "Put it right in. Send it along. I have nothing to say whatsoever!"

Direct responsibility for the riots and disorder following the walkout of striking policemen Tuesday night, September 9, was today placed on the shoulders of Police Commissioner Curtis through an affidavit submitted to James H. Vahey of counsel for the Policemen's Union.

This affidavit quoted former Superintendent of Police William H. Pierce as saying that he received instructions to send out no volunteer policemen until Wednesday morning.

It was also stated that the Boston City Council or the Legislature will be asked by organized labor to make an investigation of the overt acts of Tuesday night, for the purpose of fixing the responsibility.

The affidavit in question, claimed by Mr. Vahey to have been made by a reporter, was read to Mr. Pierce today. "I have nothing to say," said he. "I will neither affirm or deny."

This affidavit reads as follows:

Superintendent Pierce said:

"My instructions are to notify the volunteers under my charge to report for duty at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. None of the volunteers will be called for duty tonight in any event. I am acting under orders from Commis-

NAUMKEAG MILLS ARE CLOSED TO STRIKERS

Salem, Sept. 26.—The Naumkeag mills of Salem closed today as the result of a strike which began Tuesday by the members of Textile Local 13. The men left their work to enforce an increase of 25 per cent. in their pay. The strike took in 1,500 hands, 1,100 at the Naumkeag mills of Salem, and 400 at the Danvers Bleachery in Peabody. Many of the strikers were ready to go back to work today, but it seemed inadvisable to open the mills.

10,000 AT ARMY SALE STORE

Crowd, Greater Than That of Yesterday, Seeks Clothing Rather Than Food

More than 10,000 persons stormed the army retail store today, exceeding in number the initial crowds of yesterday. The great demand was for clothing. New underwear, socks and shirts came first. Renovated clothing was a close second. The subsistence booths report a sale of over $10,000 for the first day.

Colonel E. L. Glasgow, in charge of the store, reported the sales most gratifying because individual buyers had bought most of the goods, in small lots. It was these customers, said the colonel, that the authorities were anxious to serve. Today's sales opened with four new cashiers added for speedier management, thereby supplying two cashiers for each booth.

Canned meats, not so greatly demanded when the sales were conducted by the Postoffice Department, now are going strong, as 1,200 customers an hour, passing through the store today, were witness. The mail order department, however, reported only 500 customers for the first day. This department of the service is meant for all citizens of New England, exclusive of Connecticut, which is put into the New York district.

Of the eighteen carloads of merchandise put into the store for yesterday's sales, over twelve were sold before last night, necessitating the employment of a large force working late into the night to replenish stock.

Mail orders for goods should be made out to the superintendent of the Quartermaster Retail Stores, Army Supply Base, South Boston. Payment should be either by a certified check or money order, made out to the superintendent of the quartermaster's stores. Personal checks will not be honored. The time required for the delivery of mail orders will be much less than under the postoffice regime, because now the consumer is dealing directly with the War Department.

Four Soldiers Offer Blood for Benefit of Colonel Gracie

Four members of the army recruiting party at No. 3 Tremont row have each offered a pint of blood to improve the condition of Colonel William H. Gracie, suffering from pernicious anaemia in a Boston hospital. Private Theodore Dumcke, a veteran of the 1st Division, was the first to volunteer, but his blood upon test was found not to be of the right grouping for Colonel Gracie's condition. Captain J. H. Angell, who served with the 26th Division, and Sergeants Cosgrove and Brack went to the hospital today to have their blood tested, and it is believed that one of them will be of the right type to furnish the pint necessary to improve the colonel's precarious condition.

Colonel Gracie has been chief wool buyer for the Quartermaster Corps in Boston, with offices at No. 100 Summer street. His condition was brought about by overwork during the war.

"HEALER" POWERS IN COURT AS DEFAULTER

Edward T. Powers, formerly of Quincy, who recently attained some prominence as a so-called healer on Cape Cod, was in the Superior Court at Dedham today before Judge Webster Thayer, charged with defaulting payments of $3 a week for the support of his young son. The former Mrs. Powers, who married again following her divorce from the defendant, was on the stand. Her present name is Mrs. Emma Litchfield.

Powers testified that he had stopped the payments because the mother refused to let him see his child, and told the court that he now possessed only $100. Mrs. Litchfield testified that she understood Powers to have accumulated a good deal of money in his profession as healer. By order of Judge Thayer, Powers today paid Mrs. Litchfield $50 for the support of the child, and the case was continued.

POLICE LAY BLAME FOR STRIKE AND DISORDER AT CURTIS' DOOR

SAY PRAISE FOR GOVERNOR IS UNDESERVED

Governor Coolige today refused to comment on the "Tell the Truth" police statement issued by James H. Vahey and John P. Feeney as counsel for the Policemen's Union.

Former Attorney-General Herbert Parker, counsel for Police Commissioner Curtis, said that until he had time to read carefully the "Tell the Truth" statement he would say nothing.

The open letter follows:

OPEN LETTER

From JAMES H. VAHEY and JOHN P. FEENEY to Mayor ANDREW J. PETERS, Messrs. JAMES J. STORROW, Chairman; B. PRESTON CLARK, Secretary; GEORGE E. BROCK, P. A. O'CONNELL, JAMES J. PHELAN, A. C. RATSHESKY, F. S. SNYDER, CHARLES F. CHOATE, JR., CHARLES G. BANCROFT, WILLIAM M. BUTLER, Executive Committee, and other members of Citizens' Committee of 34 appointed by Mayor Peters.

Gentlemen:

The police officers of Boston—many of them veterans of the wars of the nation—have been assailed with a ferocity, injustice and lack of Christianity unparalleled in our lifetime. They have been slandered and vilified by the Governor of Massachusetts as deserters and traitors. You, gentlemen, know this is as false as hell, and that they are now being made the football of political greed and ambition. You know the truth.

On last Saturday we sent you an open letter asking you to tell the truth and have a little truth-telling party. Why haven't you done it? Are you willing that the lives of these men and their families be wrecked because you fail to tell the truth when it ought to be told? Are you willing to sit idly by when you know the truth? Why do you refuse to make your report? Why not, Mayor Peters, ask Mr. Storrow for the report? It is already written and you have seen it.

As the Mayor of this city and the only public official who had the courage to protect its inhabitants and property when the Governor and Police Commissioner left them unprotected when they told you to mind your own business, haven't you the courage now to get from your committee its report and publish it?

It is your duty to all the citizens of Boston and Massachusetts to publish all the truth—no matter who it hurts and no matter how high the office held by anyone who has failed to tell the truth. It is your duty to do it now. You and your committee know who is responsible for the strike, by what inside means the police officers were deceived and manoeuvred into a false position by those in public places.

Why should we be compelled to keep asking for the truth when it is so easy for you to tell it? You all should join with us in giving this report, already written, to all the newspapers at once, and no one should be shielded—not even the Governor of Massachusetts. He must take his share of his failure to perform his duty when it should have been done and when you, Mayor Peters, asked him to do it and when you, Mayor Peters, asked Commissioner Curtis to do it.

The truth is bound to come out and bound to come out soon. Why not tell it now, when the people are waiting for it? They all want to know the truth. They will be just when they know it.

JAMES H. VAHEY
JOHN P. FEENEY

The Boston Policemen's Union was formed to secure relief from intolerable conditions, it is declared in a statement accompanying the letter. The American Federation of Labor is given credit for bringing these conditions to light. Attention is called to the increases in policemen's pay that has already been granted in Boston and other cities and the indignation aroused over the long hours policemen have to work, since they went on strike.

The policemen say they joined the American Federation of Labor as a last resort. The Boston firemen were members of the Federation, so the policemen thought, they say, that they were not establishing a bad principle when they applied for a charter. Their Social Club had failed to get results, say the policemen. For fourteen years they had been trying to improve their working conditions through the medium of the club, without success.

SOCIAL CLUB IGNORED.

When Commissioner Curtis took office he refused to recognize the Social Club and announced that he would receive only a so-called grievance committee to be elected on lines laid down by himself. The committee was to consist of one member from each station in the city and each man was elected by the men of his own station. The patrolmen of each station were to vote, placing their votes in sealed envelopes and turning the envelopes over to the captain. The captains were to announce the election. This method led to suspicion, say the policemen.

Commissioner Curtis is given credit for minor benefits, such as shortening the time the men were required to spend in the stations under certain circumstances from four to two hours. He removed the rule requiring patrolmen wishing to leave the city on their day off to send an application to the commissioner. That authority was placed with the captains. A $200 salary increase also came during Commissioner Curtis's regime.

PAY TOO SMALL.

When the union was formed the men working under the most favorable circumstances received $1,100 for the first year, with an increase of $100 annually up to $1,600, which was the maximum. There was no extra pay for overtime.

Bad sanitary conditions and insufficient accommodations for the men required to sleep in the stations, are set forth in the statement. The policemen say their situation became acute during the recent advances in the cost of living. The average laborer, they say, was paid 50 per cent. higher wages than a patrolman.

Mayor Peters told them, say the policemen, that he could not increase their pay without cutting down the city's employes in some other department. Since the strike took place, however, he has increased the salary $300 a year, and no other city laborers have been discharged. This is cited by the patrolmen as evidence that they have not been dealt with frankly.

STORROW CRITICISED.

Statements from James J. Storrow, chairman of the committee of thirty-four appointed by the Mayor in an attempt to avert the strike, made before the committee took up its work and showing the chairman's prejudices against the policemen becoming affiliated with the Federation of Labor are criticised as showing an unfair attitude toward the policemen.

1,000 London Police Lost Jobs When They Deserted Posts

Following the police strike in London, it is interesting to note Sir Neville Macready, head of the Metropolitan police, determined that not one of the constables who went on strike would be reinstated as long as he was at the head of the force.

More than a thousand of the men lost their places and their pensions when they struck, and when the strike failed many of them applied for reinstatement.

Sir Neville declared that every man who actually refused duty had been dismissed and not one would be reinstated. He and the Home Secretary, Mr. Shortt, held that men who struck were unfitted to be policemen.

The members of the committee after hearing the facts and having opportunity to verify them, expressed themselves as "shocked and humiliated" that such a state of affairs as claimed by the patrolmen could exist in Boston. But the committee refused to concede the policemen's right to join the Federation of Labor. Counsel for the police argued that the committee in demanding that the policemen abandon their charter should suggest some other method whereby they could secure relief. It was suggested to the Mayor's committee that the policemen remain in the American Federation of Labor until it should appear that their membership in that organization was injurious to the city.

EFFORTS AT COMPROMISE.

To the men this suggestion was made: "Withdraw from the A. F. of L. and form a real organization of your own, safeguarded by this committee and by the Mayor in such fashion that headquarters cannot tamper with it."

It was agreed to reduce the compromise to writing and this was done by attorneys for the policemen. The first draft contained a provision that the policemen should retire from the American Federation of Labor, should form their own independent organization and should have grievances arbitrated.

The agreement provided that membership in the policemen's union or refusal to join it should not be prejudicial to a man's standing.

On the Wednesday before the strike, their attorneys argued with officers of the policemen's union in favor of the compromise. It was decided not to present the agreement to the full body until it had been approved by Commissioner Curtis.

INFLUENCED BY PARKER.

It was thought by both the policemen's attorneys and the Mayor's committee that Commissioner Curtis should postpone his findings on the nineteen cases of policemen who had been tried for joining the union until the committee had made its report. This he refused to do, even upon the advice of the committee and Mayor Peters, they say. Herbert Parker, former Attorney-General, who had been retained as counsel for the commissioner in this controversy, was the prime mover in the commissioner's refusal, the policemen claim. They charge that he was "the power behind the throne" of the commissioner.

On Tuesday, September 9, the policemen, after voting by written ballot, the polls being kept open for ten hours, went on strike. The findings of the commissioner had been made public the previous day.

AMPLE STRIKE WARNING.

The policemen assert that the commissioner had ample warning of the impending strike, and had told Chairman Storrow, James J. Phelan and George Brock that if the officers struck he had a man to take the place of every patrolman the minute he left. This, the policemen say, led them to believe that the city would be amply protected, and removes the charge of desertion which has been made against them.

Now, as to the reasons for the strike: It was voted because Commissioner Curtis had suspended the officers of the Policemen's Union. The men chosen for punishment were those who had been most popular among their fellows, not men whose offence against the rule was any different from that of 1,100 others.

Commissioner Curtis is charged with gross negligence of duty for the conditions that followed the strike by the policemen. Removal from office, they declare, would not be sufficient atonement. The conduct of Superintendent Crowley at that period is also described as reprehensible. To the Mayor and his advisers is given the credit for bringing the city back to normal.

The Chamber of Commerce since the strike has declared the police deserted their posts and should not be restored to duty because "they failed to accept the compromise plan of the Mayor's committee." The falsity of this accusation, the policemen say, may be seen when one learns that the president of the Chamber of Commerce read over the plan, approved it and had an unsuccessful part in attempting to get Commissioner Curtis to even discuss the plan.

VICTIMS OF "VENGEANCE."

Governor Coolidge, who has had his praises sung all over the country for his "courageous" stand in the strike, the patrolmen say, knows in his own heart and conscience that he deserves no praise and should blush with shame when he reads some of his plaudits. They say the Governor did not approve the compromise plan before the strike, and on the day of the strike he sent his memorable letter to the Mayor.

"The bitterness, hatred, rancor, vengeance and lack of Christian feeling that is now displayed toward the police officers who served this city and nation so long and faithfully," says the statement in closing, "is indicative of something far deeper in the social and industrial life of this country or else it is based upon a misunderstanding of the facts brought about by purposeful misrepresentation.

Bill Filed to Allow Extra Strike Pay to State Guardsmen

State Guardsmen in addition to reaping the benefits of the generosity of a grateful public for their services during the strike, will receive extra compensation of $3 a day if the Legislature decides to pass a bill filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives today by Representative Charles Symonds of Lynn.

The bill may be brought before the special session of the Legislature in November, which is to be held for the purpose of taking action upon the street railway transportation situation in the state. The bill reads:

"There shall be allowed and paid from the treasury of the Commonwealth to each officer and enlisted member of the State Guard, in addition to such compensation as was allowed by the Adjutant-General from appropriations at his disposal, the sum of $3 for each day's services in the city of Boston during the so-called police strike in that city."

Representative Symonds is one of the State Guardsmen now on duty in Boston.

Electrical Workers' Local 503 Favors Return of Police to Their Posts

Local 503, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, has gone on record as favoring the immediate return to duty of the former policemen of the city, according to a letter to the American by President John F. Geraghty.

The letter follows:

Editor American:

Local 503 I. B. E. W. is on record as favoring the immediate return to duty of the striking police of our great city.

Nothing breeds anarchy faster than autocracy, and statements like those of our Governor, in these trying times.

COMMITTEE TO MEET.

It was stated today that the Mayor's committee of thirty-four, of which James J. Storrow is chairman, will meet at the Exchange Club for the purpose of discussing its report on the police situation. It was expected that this report would be submitted to the Mayor today, and would be made public by him. Until that time he refused to make any statement or comment on the statement and letter of the Policemen's Union.

It was stated today that three former policemen, whose families are in need, sought jobs in answer to advertisements, but were refused employment because of the action of the Policemen's Union.

Tittoni Says Seizure of Fiume Would Mean New Claims by Other Powers

Rome, Sept. 25 (Delayed)—Foreign Minister Tittoni, in addressing the Italian Crown Council today, said that the peace conference could not consider Italian possession of Fiume an accomplished fact without the risk of other European powers occupying territory which they are now claiming.

Former Minister Giolitti proposed to settle the Fiume question by a national election, but former Premier Salandra opposed this on the ground that it "might lead to civil war." Regret was expressed by Signor Tittoni that President Wilson had not replied to the proposals for a Fiume settlement. He declared that the conference by considering the Italian possession of Fiume as an accomplished fact would risk similar action by Czecho-Slovakia in regard to Thrace and Rumania in regard to Banat. In the case of these various attempts at occupation the peace conference would have no other recourse but to dissolve, the Foreign Minister pointed out.

According to the Agenza Nazionale, Signor Bissolati, the Nationalist leader, demanded the immediate annexation of Fiume by Italy.

"The President has exerted himself so constantly and has been under such a strain during the last year and has so spent himself without reserve on this trip that it has brought on a nervous reaction in his digestive organs. Dr. Grayson therefore insists upon the cancellation of his remaining appointments and his immediate return to Washington, notwithstanding the President's earnest desire to complete his engagements."

The President did not get any rest during the night, as the nervous reaction kept him awake. Admiral Grayson remained constantly at his side.

The President was very insistent that there should be no interference with the trip, as he did not want to disappoint the people. However, it was stated by the doctor that it would be very unwise for him to attempt any further speeches.

The President was very much disappointed with this order, but he finally accepted the dictates of his physician. Orders immediately were sent forward to arrange for the return of the train to Washington.

The President will go direct to the White House on his arrival there to rest. Admiral Grayson stated that all that could be said was contained in the statement issued by Secretary Tumulty.

JURIST PAID $10,000 TO SILENCE MRS. HERCHT-LANE, SWANN DECLARES

AGREED TO SUPPORT HER BOY

New Jersey Governor Begins Personal Investigation of Matrimonial Tangle

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 26.—The sum of $10,000 was passed along certain channels to obtain the suppression of the bigamy charges which Mrs. Grace Hercht-Lane sought to have prosecuted against Joseph Merritt Lane, former Vice-Chancellor of New Jersey, according to reports made to the office of District Attorney Swann of New York County, Judge Swann said today.

With the admission by District Attorney Swann that his office had been interested in the case for some time, came the announcement that Governor Runyon would come here today to investigate charges that Lane married Miss Geraldine Garrison Kerr, niece of former Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison, before the expiration of seventy-two hours after the taking out of the marriage license, as the New Jersey law requires.

The Governor is scheduled to confer with Chancellor Edwin Walker regarding the case. The New Jersey authorities have no jurisdiction over the charge of Mrs. Hercht-Lane that the Joseph Lane she married at Stamford, April 4, 1919, was the same man who married Miss Kerr, January 30, 1919, but Governor Runyon considers the charge that one of the State's foremost jurists broke its laws worthy of his personal investigation.

District Attorney Swann said that he had summoned Charles E. Kelly, Mrs. Hercht-Lane's attorney, to his office when it was reported to him that money had been passed to suppress the case.

"His story told of a boy Mrs. Hercht-Lane had borne the vice-chancellor. The boy's name was Joseph Merritt Lane, Jr.

"Joseph Merritt Lane, while yet the husband of his first wife, Clara W. Wittnebert-Lane, whom he married when he was twenty-one, and with no divorce having been granted, married Grace Hercht.

"The marriage took place in 1912 at the Prospect House, Niagara Falls, N. Y.

"That was clearly an illegal union, however. Lane did not have a bona fide certificate. According to Mrs. Hercht-Lane's account, directly after the ceremony Lane took the certificate and continued to keep it, despite the protests of Mrs. Lane."

After discussing the manner of meeting between Lane and Mrs. Hercht, the secret marriage to Mrs. Geraldine Garrison Kerr and the alleged subsequent marriage to Mrs. Hercht, District-Attorney Swann continued:

"He gave $10,000 to Mrs. Hercht-Lane for the support and maintenance of their child, Joseph Merritt Lane, Jr., and for herself. An agreement was reached in Putnam County that a sum of $300 a month should be paid until the boy was twenty-one years old. Thereafter the amount was to be $200 monthly. The monetary side of the matter was settled, I understand, in Essex County."

CHARLESTOWN TO HAVE SEMI-CONVERTIBLES

Beginning next week the Boston Elevated will introduce a number of big, semi-convertible cars on Main street, Charlestown. These cars seat fifty-two persons and they will take the place of the 25-feet box cars, seating only thirty-four passengers, now in use on that line.

Semi-convertible cars have been put on Washington street, running from Dudley street to the North Station. They have been well patronized, and from the reports received this line is likely to become popular.

THOROUGHBREDS SHOW TRUE FORM TO THOUSANDS AT BOSTON FAIR IN READVILLE PARK

At top, left to right, Mrs. William DuPont, Jr., on Donnacona, winner of first prize for saddle horses; Miss Isabella Wanamaker, who won first prize in tandems with Eve and Netherall's Pride, and Miss Dorothy Forbes, prize winner in a harness event. In circle, at left, Miss Martha Peabody and, below, Mrs. E. M. Grinnell with Kitty Reynolds. At right, Baron E. de Brueggen on Orange Prince.

The horse is king in Readville today where the Boston Fair is in progress. Thousands of New Englanders flocked there in trains, trolley cars and automobiles to admire and pay homage to his nobility. No motor can ever entirely replace his equine majesty, they agreed, judging from comment heard on all sides.

Today's entries include the best from blueblood stables in all parts of the country. Mrs. Loula Long Combs of Kansas City, the leading horsewoman of the West, has her horses at Readville and several of them are entered in today's events. Pennsylvania, Delaware and New York State are also represented.

INTEREST KEEN FOR HOTEL CUP.

Much interest centered in the Lenox-Brunswick cup which is strictly a Massachusetts contest. Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester, Mrs. Charles B. Wiggin, Miss Eleonora Sears, Miss Gertrude Bradlee and Baron E. de Brueggen are among those who rode for the cup today.

There are many things at the fair grounds besides the horses but they were admittedly side shows. For instance, there is a cattle exhibition of Holsteins, Ayrshires, Guernseys and Jerseys. Their total value is placed at a half million dollars. Late today there will be a parade of the cattle before the grandstand. The motor car couldn't be kept out even of the horse's kingdom, so a display of late models was set up in a tent on the fair grounds.

"Salina Guy," a race horse owned by Harlow Walt of Providence, finished the first heat of the 2:24 trot in which it was entered Thursday and dropped dead just as its nose was beneath the wire. It held sixth place.

"Ecce Vola" upheld her claim of "Behold, I Fly," and won the 2:21 trot of the races. All of the heats were run below schedule time. "Margaret Harvester" proved the best of 1917 foals in the trotting for this class and the 2:19 pace was won by "Anoaki" in three straight heats. "Homefast" came home fast and first for the three heats in the 2:13 trot. More fast harness races are promised today.

Running races were reintroduced to Boston at Readville with a quarter of a mile dash for polo ponies. "Catch Me," owned by George Chipchase, came in first and was followed respectively by "Sister," owned by J. P. Bowditch, and "Mexpete" from the stables of B. Nason Hamlin.

The Perkins cup offered by Charles E. Perkins for the best park or road hack horse owned by amateurs in the horse show was won by "Radiant," owned by Miss Eleonora Sears. Second place went to "Cherokee Princess," from Woodland stables, third place to "Avonmore," owned by Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester, and fourth to "Kitty Reynolds," owned by C. B. Wiggin.

In the saddle horse class leading) Miss Mary Louise Almy, showing her Gray Mist, won first prize; Folly, from the Woodland stables, won second; Donnocona, owned by the Misses Field of Brookline, was third, and Gay Field, owned by Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester, was fourth.

In the saddle horse class (riding) Mrs. William DuPont, Jr., on Donnacona, owned by Mrs. William Field of Brockton, won first prize; Miss Constance Vanclain riding The Minstrel, owned by herself, won second prize, and Miss Eleonora Sears on Radiant, won third, and Folly from the Woodland stables won fourth.

SADDLE HORSES SPEEDY.

The tandems was won by "Eve" and "Netherhall's Pride," driven by Miss Isabella Wanamaker. "Revelation and Consternation," driven by Mrs. Loula Long Combs, was second, "Excessive and Expressive," by Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester, third, and "Nipper and Tinker," by Miss Jean Browne Scott, fourth.

Of the polo mount class "Sister" owned by J. P. Bowditch made the best showing and won first prize. The harness horse class was won by Mrs. Loula Long Combs and second prize by Miss Jean Browne Scott.

BAR "SIDE LINES" TO NEW BEDFORD POLICE

New Bedford, Sept. 26.—Members of the New Bedford police force are denied a chance to increase their incomes with "side-lines" by an order just issued by Deputy Chief John C. Parker.

Bluecoats who are performing other work in addition to their police duties must give it up before October 1. The standard wage of the police was recently raised to $5 a day.

'Weary Willies' Pass With the Saloon, Figures Show

Score another triumph for prohibition.

Latest figures from the State Board of Charity show only 48 commitments to the State Farm at Bridgewater during a month, in comparison with 127 during the same month of last year. Asked to explain the falling off, Robert E. Kelso, executive secretary of the board, replied:

"The passing of the saloon and improved industrial conditions are responsible. 'Weary Willies' and chronic loafers are becoming things of the past. High wages are an incentive to work, and the uninviting atmosphere of the saloon since July 1 has driven the man who habitually disliked work from his accustomed haunts.

"In the old days, when work was not so plentiful, the 'hobo' could panhandle from year to year and get away with it. Now the excuse of no work can't be used."

ASKS LEGION TO FIND MISSING OVERSEAS MAN

John Stephens of No. 171 Savin Hill avenue, has appealed to State Secretary Spillane of the American Legion to help in locating his son, Private Joseph Stephens, of C Company, 101st Infantry. Mr. Stephens says he has not seen his son since he left with the 101st Regiment for overseas and has not heard from him since March 14, 1919. At that time he wrote from France, and was attached to the Prisoners of War Escort Company, No. 19.

Mr. Spillane has forwarded a letter to the American expeditionary forces headquarters in Washington asking that department to locate Private Stephens.

SENTENCE THREE IN BANKRUPTCY CASE

The trial of Frank J. Graffes, Simon Cohn and Bronislaw Prondecki, heard before Judge James M. Morton, Jr., and a jury in the United States District Court, came to an abrupt ending when Graffes pleaded guilty and the other two defendants pleaded nolo to indictments which charged them with conspiracy to conceal assets in bankruptcy belonging to the estate of Frank J. Graffes.

Judge Morton sentenced Graffes to serve a year and a day at the Northampton jail and imposed a fine of $100 on Prondecki and a $50 fine on Cohn. The defendants live in Northampton.

RECEIVER FOR BLOWER PLANT APPOINTED

South Boston Works to Be Kept Going—Loyal Employes Number 650

F. Alexander Chandler of Belmont was today appointed receiver for the Nelson Blower & Furnace Company of South Boston by Judge George H. Bingham of the Federal Court. Mr. Chandler qualified under a mond of $50,000. The appointment empowers him to continue the business, which although in financial difficulties several weeks, has kept its plant in operation. The employes, numbering 650, remained loyally at work despite the fact that they had not received pay for two weeks.

The William H. Haskell Manufacturing company of Pawtucket, submitted the petition for a receivership.

It is stated that the Blower company was believed to be able to take care of all its obligations if continued as a going concern.

During the war the company was engaged extensively in manufacturing gun mounts and at present is manufacturing tractors principally. When the armistice was signed the concern found it necessary to adjust itself to peacetime conditions, which resulted in financial difficulties. Receiver Chandler is the member of the firm of Chandler & Farquhar.

They Are 'Tuning Up' at Harvard for Club Concerts

If in passing Harvard the next few days one hears sounds like a Conservatory of Music and Symphony Hall on Pop night rolled into one, one must not be mystified. It will be only aspirants for the Harvard Musical Club tuning up. College Carusos will probably yodle themselves hoarse and players of stringed instruments may wear the skin off their thumbs, because Monday is to be the big day when candidates will be weeded out for the mandolin, banjo and glee clubs.

The music squad at Harvard expects a big year following the war. Dual concerts will be held with Yale and Princeton on the eve of the big football games and concert tours have been arranged for New York and points South.

SUFFRAGE FOES MEET NEW SETBACK

Attempt to Obtain Referendum Vote Falls Short by 2,000 Signatures

An attempt by anti-suffrage sympathisers to secure a referendum vote on woman suffrage in Massachusetts at the forthcoming election met with failure when they fell short by 2,000 signatures of completing their petition.

It is the second setback the petitioners have met with in their effort to defeat woman suffrage. Their first was when Attorney-General Henry C. Attwill ruled that the Secretary of State's Department was not obliged to supply blanks for signatures on the ground that the action of the Legislature in ratifying the Federal suffrage amendment was not open to the referendum.

The petitioners carried their fight to the Supreme Court with an application for a mandamus to compel the issuance of the papers. While awaiting the court decision the Secretary of State agreed to issue the blanks without prejudice in regard to the decision of the court.

Even though the Supreme Court should decide that a referendum on the action of the Legislature is legal, the question could not go before the people until next year. The petitioners insist that they have a right to complete the present petition and have the question submitted upon at the election in 1920, but the Secretary of State's office is still undecided whether the petitioners must take out new petitions for that purpose and begin all over again to obtain signatures.

Among the petitioners who sought the referendum were: Courtenay Guild, John A. Sullivan, David A. Ellis, James M. Pendergast, Francis R. Hart, Joseph F. O'Connell, George E. Stackpole, William B. Wall, Walter R. Meins, Joseph H. Sutherland, William H. Sayward, John F. Myron, Arthur Simon, Bernard F. Short, Henry W. Norton and Fred W. O'Connor.

CLEW IN HUNT FOR GIRL IS FALSE

Muriel Young, Missing With Jewels, Has Not Yet Been Located

Muriel Young, missing foster daughter of Mrs. A. P. Eagleston and niece of Mrs. Cora B. Eagleston, proprietor of Suntaug Inn, Lynnfield, has not as yet been located. A private detective agency, other than that which has been retained by the family to hunt for the girl, aroused false hopes by stating that she had probably been located in Washington.

Today her uncle, Charles White of New York, notified the Pinkerton operatives in Boston, that the Washington clew was groundless. The hunt continues with circulars being sent to every city in the country.

Pawnbrokers and dealers in jewels through the country are being asked to watch for her and also to watch for the jewels which are missing from the Lynnfield home of Mrs. Cora B. Eagleston. These jewels were said to have been taken by the girl, but are not considered as having been stolen.

The Pinkertons have sent out a list of the articles of jewelry, nine in all, and are requesting that persons offering them for sale be closely questioned regarding the whereabouts of the girl. The list is as follows:

Platinum lavalliere, set with diamonds, value $3,500.

Sapphire brooch, surrounded with nine diamonds.

Ring containing three sapphires, surrounded by diamonds.

Topaz finger ring, Tiffany setting.

Amethyst pendant, platinum chain, pearl in centre.

Gold sunburst, containing pearl and diamond in centre, attached to gold chain.

Platinum and gold bar pin, containing sapphire and diamonds.

Cameo earrings.

Diamond earrings.

BOY OF 16 IS HELD AS STORE-BREAKER

Sixteen-year-old Elias Muther, of Winchester street, Medford, charged in Somerville police court with breaking and entering the store of Walter J. Brennan at No. 135 Washington street, Somerville, early today, pleaded not guilty. He was held in $300 for trial on October 4. It is alleged that the boy with two others broke into the store and collected candy and cigarettes to take away. When Patrolman Claude Grossman started to investigate the boys jumped from a rear window and ran. When Muther was captured he had a hacksaw and a screw driver in his possession.

EATON'S MIND UNSOUND, SAYS EXPERT

Declares Will Codicil Was Made by Irresponsible Man

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 26.—The $100,000 Eaton will case was featured here by testimony of two noted Manchester doctors, one an expert on neuropathology, testifying for the contestants, who asserted that the late Perry Eaton of Weare, N. H., and Manchester, undoubtedly was a victim of senile dementia and unable to comprehend what he was doing when he added a codicil ten days before his death as the result of which his companion for twenty years, Mrs. Lydia Dow, was bequeathed $38,000.

A dramatic touch was added to the trial in connection with testimony from Mr. Eaton's eldest daughter, Mrs. Elmer P. Spaulding, formerly Mrs. C. Frank Bennett.

Mrs. Spaulding had testified regarding her loving care of her father in his last illness and a previous one and of the filial relations between herself and her father.

This was testimony she gave when examined by counsel for the contestants, Timothy O'Connor of Manchester. She was turned over to Attorney Warren, who represents Mrs. Dow.

WITNESS EMBARRASSED.

Asked if she had been notified of an action for divorce by counsel representing her first husband, C. Frank Bennett, in which it had been alleged she was guilty of misconduct with the man she subsequently married, Elmer P. Spaulding, she said she did not remember of receiving such a document.

Attorney Warren then dramatically produced a legal looking document which he said was a copy of the notice in question and to freshen her memory of the circumstance he would read it aloud, which he proceeded to do, to the visible embarrassment of the witness.

Counsel showed, by reading the notice to the jury, that the witness' first husband had sought a divorce in Merrimack County on the ground of cruelty, attacking him with a knife, calling him a fool, refusing to cook his meals, and that, according to the notice, she had been guilty of adultery at times and places specified by her husband in his suit.

Mr. Warren produced other documents showing Bennett had been granted his divorce and had been given an order from the court allowing him to take household goods held in custody of his wife.

SHOT GUN AT RANDOM.

The so-called "gun and revolver incident," which has cropped out repeatedly in the contest, was brought out in connection with Mrs. Spaulding's testimony.

Following her mother's death in Manchester in 1912, her father and Mrs. Dow and she and her husband lived for a time at the old homestead at Weare, the two couples ocupying rooms on opposite sides of the farmhouse.

Mrs. Spaulding testified it was her father's habit this time when they were there, to go out in the yard with his rifle and fire it off at random for half-hour periods, greatly to her distress, as she thought he could undoubtedly kill some passerby.

Later, a short time before her father died, one noon he arose from the dinner table, staggered into a bedroom and the door was closed. She heard a commotion and entered the room. She saw her father and Mrs. Dow struggling for possession of a revolver he flourished in his hand. Mrs. Dow, she said, secured it and quieted him down. At that time she said Mrs. Dow told her a time previously he had fired his revolver up through the ceiling and she said Mrs. Dow showed her the marks in the ceiling.

ASKED MRS. EATON TO FORGIVE.

Testifying about the incident of the codicil being made, ten days before Eaton's death, his daughter said one evening Mrs. Dow went to Harry Loveren's office and arranged for him to come next morning and fix it up. Loveren came and he and Eaton and Mrs. Dow went into a room alone. She said when Mrs. Dow came out of the room the latter said to her: "You needn't feel bad after all your father has done for you, and you can thank me for his having done it."

She replied to this: "I don't think I have to thank you for anything my father does for me."

The case will probably not reach the jury before next week. Mrs. Spaulding resumes the stand this morning.

GOMPERS TELLS SENATE COMMITTEE REAL ISSUES IN STEEL STRIKE

ARRAIGNS CORPORATION FOR ITS "BRUTAL METHODS"

and conditions of employment," Gompers replied.

"The right of association of workers has been denied for many years, and denied with all the power and wealth and domination of the steel corporation," he continued. "Not only denial by lawful means, but more often by unlawful and brutal means.

"The charge has been made that the men now engaged in the strike are foreigners. That may be true, and no doubt it is. But these men were brought to the United States by the systematic efforts of the steel corporation, and given preference over native Americans or men already in America."

"HARVEST TO REAP NOW."

"Indeed, there was a systematic effort to eliminate Americans," Gompers said. "They have the harvest to reap now."

"At what time was this bringing in of men in practice?" asked Senator Phipps.

"For twenty-five years, until just before the war," answered Gompers.

Gompers declared in an answer to a question from Senator Phipps that the practice had been continued even after the passage of the law prohibiting the immigration of contract labor. He said that later he would submit records of immigration and documents to prove his statement.

"The hours of labor in the steel industry have been abnormally long," Gompers said.

"The attempt to organize on the part of the people themselves has always been met with stern opposition from the steel corporations," Gompers continued. "The requests came from the workers themselves that they be organized. Those men making such efforts were spotted by the detectives and by espionage.

DOGGED BY DETECTIVE.

The detective agencies in the United States two years ago devoted fully 80 per cent. of their activities in dealing with agents in the mills or mines, or engaging in spying, dogging men or to provoke men into contests prematurely in order that they might commit some overt act or be forced into a premature strike for which they were unorganized.

"Men were discharged for no other reason than grumbling.

"Men who had the temerity to go to any meeting were watched and tagged and discharged the next morning.

"The whole system of espionage on these workmen was greater than has ever been put upon the greatest criminal.

"Being discharged from the steel industry meant practically that they were blacklisted and prevented from getting any other employment."

Question of Moral Principle Involved in Strike, Asserts Gary

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 26.—Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, is on record today with the personal conviction that the national strike of iron and steel workers should not be arbitrated nor compromised because of the moral principle involved.

Judging from his statement, the first he has made since the iron and steel workers opened their industrial war for recognition of their union, Judge Gary believes that the strike should be a "fight to a finish."

The statement was called forth by the declaration of John Fitzpatrick, leader of the steel strikers, to the Senate investigating committee, that twenty-four unions were willing to submit all issues in the strike to arbitration, the umpires to be selected by President Wilson.

"Questions of moral principle cannot be arbitrated nor compromised, and in my opinion such questions are included in the present unfortunate struggle," said Judge Gary. "I also think we cannot negotiate or confer with Mr. Fitzpatrick and his associates as union leaders concerning our employes whom these gentlemen have volunteered to represent."

Judge Gary professed to see grave future dangers involved in the steel strike, and indicated his belief that the steel companies stand as the bulwark against even a greater menace in years to come.

"If the steel strike succeeds," said he, "it might and probably would be the beginning of an upheaval which might bring on all of us grave and serious consequences. You know that the questions involved in the strike which is led by Foster, the acknowledged revolutionist, are higher than the United States Steel Corporation."

Judge Gary's prediction of peril, if the strike succeeds, was made in a speech he delivered at a dinner to Baron Kondo, leading Japanese shipowner, at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

Number of Men Now on Strike Totals 350,000, Declare Union Heads

By International News Service.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 26.—The steel strike went into its fifth day today giving every appearance of having evolved into a long-drawn-out test of endurance between the steel interests and the organized employes. Events of the last 24 hours lead to the belief in Pittsburgh that only intervention by some outside agency, possibly the government, can lead to a quick settlement of the conflict.

Both sides saw in Judge Gary's reiterated refusal to deal with Foster and Fitzpatrick and E. R. Grace's refusal to meet them in conference a declaration of the platform upon which the steel operators will fight the issue to a finish.

It also was admitted here that the stand taken by the two biggest steel interests of the country, the United States Steel Corporation and the Bethlehem Steel Company, cannot fail to crystalize behind them the smaller independent concerns, of which there are many through this section.

UNIONS CLAIM GAINS.

The physical side of the strike is practically deadlocked here today. Union leaders claimed small additions to their ranks. Men are gradually being persuaded to come out of the mills which are still running, and in South Pittsburgh, where some of the largest mills of the city are located, the gain has been substantial, according to union claims. Strike headquarters assert that the number of men on strike now throughout the country totals 350,000, a gain of 8,000 over the last previous figures.

On the other hand, the operators claimed that everywhere the situation is clarifying and men are reporting back to work. Assurance that they will be protected has led thousands of men to return to their tasks, they claim, with the result that there is a gradual resumption of many departments in the mills which were closed on the first day.

The strikers' national committee will meet here within the next few days to decide on a policy with regard to the Bethlehem Steel plants, which so far have been exempt from the strike. Little doubt was expressed today but that the committee will order a walkout.

It was said that President Grace's flat refusal to deal with the leaders leaves the unions no other choice of action. The strikers through this district have the right to meet today—if they can find a place to gather indoors.

A protest committee waited on Sheriff W. S. Haddock of Allegheny County, asserting that their constitutional rights were being abridged by the breaking up of meetings by State constabulary. The sheriff informed them that they could meet in halls, but that open air meetings were taboo because of the danger of mob action resulting.

TREATMENT OF STEEL MEN CRITICISED

Denial to Strikers of Right to Assemble Peacefully Scored by G. S. MacFarland

Lawrence, Sept. 26.—Pennsylvania authorities who have refused the steel strikers the right to assemble peacefully were severely criticised by Grenville S. MacFarland, Boston lawyer, speaking at the thirteenth annual reunion of Lawrence Typographical Union No. 51.

"It is just as ridiculous for the authorities to deny the steel strikers the right to assemble to discuss the strike as it would be for them to deny the directors of the steel companies the right to meet to discuss it, or to telephone or telegraph to each other about it," said Mr. MacFarland.

Mr. MacFarland also declared that the public had received a wrong impression as to the responsibility of the police strikers for the lawlessness that followed their walkout. He declared that although the strike of the policemen constituted an act of desertion of duty the outbreak of lawlessness that happened to follow was not chargeable to them and that in time the public would come to recognise that fact.

The speaker also declared that it behooves the American public to reserve judgment on the Russian Bolsheviki.

"The truth about Russia and the Bolsheviki is not yet known in this country," he declared. "Until it is known it is unwise to form any conclusions as to the merit of the Bolshevist government."

Members of the union who were in the military service were given medals, the affair being in the nature of a reception to them. Frank P. Sibley of Boston was toastmaster.

Strike Situation in Gary Is Facing Its First Severe Break

Chicago, Sept. 26.—With more than 3,000 steel workers reported at work at the Illinois Steel Company plant in Gary, Ind., and 800 more preparing to return to their places under police protection, the strike situation in Gary faces its first severe break.

Mayor W. F. Hodges of Gary assured a committee of ten men, representing several hundred men who wished to return to their work, that they would be given every protection possible both on their way to work and between the plants and their homes at night.

"That holds for every man in Gary who wants to return to work," Mayor Hodges said.

Every steel plant in Gary was reported operating today, although with greatly reduced forces, and with output accordingly limited.

TO UNVEIL HONOR ROLL AT DEDHAM COUNCIL

A bronze roll of honor to the seventy-six members of Dedham Council, No. 234, K. of C., who were in the service, a gift from the council, will be unveiled in Memorial Hall, Dedham, Sunday evening, October 12. Major-General Clarence R. Edwards and Colonel Edward L. Logan have been invited.

Steel Strike Bulletins

Pittsburgh, Sept. 26.—State troopers had a short battle near Clairton today, resulting in the arrest of three men, all armed. Sporadic shots have been fired into the North Clairton mills from a woods nearby. State troopers went through the woods today and investigated. Several shots were fired, which hit no one.

Columbus, O., Sept. 26.—Replying to the request from many Ohio business men that he send State troops to steel strike centres, Governor Cox declared that "the moment an attempt is made to make this strike an industrial revolution the troops will move instanter."

Newcastle, Pa., Sept. 26.—Mill operators today reported additional increases in working personnel and the resumption of several departments. Fifteen out of twenty mills at the Newcastle plant are operating, an increase of five.

MAYOR ELDRIDGE TO SEEK THIRD TERM

Mayor Charles W. Eldridge of Somerville today announced his candidacy for a third term. He will run on the Republican ticket. He said:

"My platform will be a record of my administration, which for the past two years has been exceedingly difficult, owing to the war and conditions following, but I have endeavored to give, with the co-operation of the Board of Aldermen, a sound business administration, keeping the municipal expenses within reasonable limits, reducing the funded debt and doing my best in behalf of the city to honor and care for the service men's families who have been left destitute.

"I hope that all the citizens will inform themselves fully concerning my official acts, and if my administration has been satisfactory, I ask their confidence and support."

Representative William B. French and Alderman John M. Webster have been mentioned as other candidates on the Republican ballot.

CONTESTS WILL OF ECCENTRIC SISTER

Vermont Woman Who Killed Herself in Dread of Burial Alive, Cut Off Family

North Hero, Vt., Sept. 26.—Letters and personal papers which may bear on the will of Miss Maud Howricorn, who committed suicide last July, leaving her entire estate of $20,000 to the Mary Fletcher Hospital of Burlington, were ordered to be produced today in the Grand Isle County Court, where John Howricorn, brother of the testatrix, is contesting the will.

Miss Howricon killed herself by cutting her throat and shooting herself in the head as a result, it is claimed, of her dread of being buried alive. Her brother is seeking to show that she was insane at the time she made the will.

The existence of the letters was made known during the testimony of Mrs. Cora Hazen, a sister of the testatrix. She was ordered by Judge Frank L. Fish to produce them at once.

Seven of the most prominent lawyers in the State are involved in the case. Judge Charles M. Darling, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Judge Mower, Fred M. Webster and Guy M. Paige are representing the hospital, while United States District-Attorney Brown, Vernon A. Bullard and Judge Ladd represent the petitioner.

Murray Danielson, a farm hand employed by Miss Howricon, testified that a Grand Isle school board had once discharged her as a school teacher because of her eccentric behavior.

BANDITS ROB BANK OF $15,000 LIBERTY BONDS

East Liverpool, O., Sept. 26.—Yeggs "cracked" the safe in the New Waterford Savings and Banking Company's institution at New Waterford, 35 miles north of here early today and escaped with $15,000 worth of Liberty bonds and $165 in cash. A large sum of money was placed yesterday afternoon in a section of the safe which was not wrecked by the explosion.

Claims Japanese Grab All Industries on Pacific Coast

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—Financed from Japan, the Japanese on the Pacific Coast are monopolizing the hotel business, movies, the wholesale grocery business and farm trucking and have organized trusts, notably along banking and agricultural lines, Miller Freeman of Seattle told the Immigration Committee.

"Since the breaking down of the Russian government," said Freeman, "they are sweeping over the Siberian fisheries, and on into Alaskan fisheries, from which they have been barred for many years by this government."

Japanese residents of the United States were instructed by the Japanese government to insist on exemption from military service with the United States against Germany, he added.

MURPHY WAS NOMINATED IN WARD 17 AFTER ALL

Through a mistake on the part of the election commissioners in announcing the vote, many residents of Ward 17 are not aware of the fact that Representative Daniel C. Murphy was renominated on the Democratic ticket. According to returns, Murphy, as his host of friends will be pleased to learn, received 661 votes. As originally given out by the election officers he had but 621 votes. The revised figures give him a place on the ballot. The result of the Ward 17 vote for the Democratic nomination for representative was as follows: Cowin 830, Coughlin 623, Murphy 661.

WEST NEWTON GIRL, 7, KILLED UNDER AUTO

Lilly Gorgoni, seven, of No. 22 Cottage place, West Newton, was killed when she was struck by an automobile owned and operated by John A. Duane of No. 216 River street, West Newton, at the junction of Auburndale avenue and River street, West Newton. Duane was held blameless by the police, to whom he reported after taking the child to the Newton Hospital.

The child was the daughter of Salvatore Gorgoni, an employe at the Brighton abattoir, and a pupil at the Franklin School.

LAD NEAR DEATH FROM GAS ASPHYXIATION

Seven-year-old James Adamson, son of William and Margaret Adamson of No. 83 Baker street, Revere, narrowly escaped death from asphyxiation by gas early today. The boy, who was sleeping in the kitchen, was heard groaning by his father, who found the lad unconscious. Gas was escaping from a leak in the hose connection of the gas range. Patrolman Edward Tigh procured a pulmoter and after working over the boy for more than an hour he regained consciousness.

Fairhaven Fire Chief Dead

New Bedford, Sept. 26.—Charles E. Westgate, for five years chief of the Fairhaven Fire Department, and formerly a member of the Board of Health of that town, died at his home there. He was fifty years old.

ALMSHOUSE INMATES INTRODUCED TO WORK

New Bedford, Sept. 26.—Inmates of the New Bedford almshouse are to be given a chance to exercise their muscles. The overseers of the poor are providing axes and chopping blocks and a couple of hundred cords of wood, and the male inhabitants of the poor farm will be invited to cut the fuel up in stove lengths. Inmates of the almshouse never have been asked to work before.

BRICKLAYERS DEMAND WAGE OF $1 AN HOUR

New Bedford, Sept. 26.—The Bricklayers' Union tomorrow will present demands to the master masons for the adoption of a wage scale of $1 an hour. They are now getting eighty cents. The employers stand ready to grant the union eighty-five cents an hour.

IS YOUR BLOOD STARVING FOR WANT OF IRON?

Iron is Red Blood Food—It Helps to Put Strength and Energy Into the Veins of Men and Roses Into the Cheeks of Women. Why Nuxated Iron so Quickly Builds Up Weak, Nervous Run-down People.

Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

Thousands of men and women are impairing their constitutions, laying themselves open to illness and literally losing their grip on health, simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of the virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable.

Iron is absolutely essential to enable your blood to transform the food you eat into muscular tissue and brain. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life-sustaining oxygen enters the body. Without iron there is no strength, vitality and endurance to combat obstacles or withstand severe strains. Contrary to general opinion, lack of iron in the blood does not necessarily mean you do not have enough blood, but it means your blood is not of the right kind. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded people there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. No matter what other tonics or iron remedies you have used without success, if you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have increased their strength and endurance in two weeks' time while taking iron in the proper form. Nuxated Iron is now being used by over three million people annually, and the manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

FREE MEDICAL AID OFFERED EX-SOLDIERS

Dr. Frederic J. Cotton Will Act as Intermediary to Private Resources in War Funds

Dr Frederick J. Cotton former chief of the surgical staff of General Hospital No. 10, announces, through the Boston American, means whereby discharged soldiers, still in need of care, may secure treatment at the Elks' and Robert Breck Brigham Hospital on Parker Hill. In a letter, Dr. Cotton states:

"In the American of September 22, under headline, 'Wounded Resent Action,' you accurately present a number of facts as to the handling of our New England boys invalided home. It is true that many of the men were transferred to hospitals far away from their homes. The writer has no little cause to share the soldiers' disappointment, over this action, to put it mildly. This is all done, not to be undone.

"The only thing now is to make sure that the soldiers get the best possible care in the future. If they apply rightly, they can have anything in reason. First—the Public Health Service offers them care, as a right.

"The Public Health Service has taken over Hospital No. 10 on Parker Hill, the Elks' and Brigham outfits. Any discharged man can apply to the offices of the U. S. Public Health Service, at No. 51 Cornhill, and will be examined and cared for—well cared for.

"Second, there are private resources, supported not by charity, but by war funds switched over for just this purpose before the Public Health Service began functioning. Any deserving case that cannot be cared for by the Public Health Service, and does not wish to apply to the Red Cross, may have his medical and surgical expenses met, without feeling an object of charity in any way. Those in charge of these resources have not cared for publicity, but the undersigned can and gladly will act as intermediary in such cases."

TWO OIL CONCERNS CITED AS UNFAIR

Washington, Sept. 26.—The Standard Oil Company of Kentucky and the Texas Company were cited by the Federal Trade Commission today in formal complaints of unfair competition. The commission alleges the concerns lease or loan gasoline pumps and tanks to dealers "at considerations which do not represent reasonable returns on the investment in such devices on the understanding that these dealers will sell from the pumps only gasoline supplied by these concerns."

AMERICAN POET OFFERS SERVICES TO D'ANNUNZIO

London, Sept. 26.—John Dox, who is described as an American poet, has offered his services to Gabriele D'Annunzio at Fiume, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Fiume.

Pershing's Army Began Big Victory Drive Year Ago

By International News Service.

Today is the first anniversary of the opening of the mighty Meuse-Argonne offensive in France—the final campaign in which the Americans smashed the southern flank of the Hindenburg line and gave their most extensive aid in bringing Germany to her knees.

Co-operating with the French on a forty-mile front north of Verdun, General Pershing's veterans began a drive in which fighting never ceased until Germany threw up her hands and signed the armistice on November 11.

CLAIMS GERMANY IS UNDEFEATED IN EAST

By IGNACE PADEREWSKI.

The Famous Pianist, Now Premier of Poland.

(Written Expressly for Universal Service.)

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Paris, Sept. 26.—Germany is not beaten in the east. She is now confronting Poland with 800,000 men under arms and can easily mobilize 2,000,000 more on the shortest notice.

Under the pretext of giving work to laborers, she is manufacturing arms at high speed. It is a profound error to believe she is disarmed.

Germany, in her republican disguise, is just as perfidious as ever and employing the same tactics that made her infamous in Belgium in dealing with the Poles in Upper Silesia, with the object of terrorizing them so that they will not dare vote against Germany's interests in the coming plebiscite.

JITNEY PASSENGERS HURT IN QUINCY CRASH

Two men were slightly injured today when a loaded jitney bus, operating between Quincy square and the Fore River shipyards, struck a street car and was thrown twenty-five feet. The jitney, owned and operated by Herbert Session, was carrying fourteen passengers. Session was driving on the tracks and turned out to allow a car to pass. When he thought all was clear he attempted to return to the tracks and struck the rear of the trolley car. The jitney was thrown against the curbing and badly smashed. Two men who refused to give their names went to the Fore River Hospital for treatment.

ONE FORMER SERVICE MAN FOR POLICE TEST

A single ex-service man awaited registration and the preliminary examination for the civil service at Kingsley Hall when the hall opened today. Three others sought registration, but not being ex-service men were rejected.

DETAIN WOMAN TOURIST FOR INCOME TAX

Denied Passage on S. S. Elysia for Glasgow; Vessel Takes Big Cargo

Several last-moment flurries marked the sailing today of the steamship Elysia, Captain B. W. Bone, for Glasgow, with 102 passengers and a full general cargo. Miss Susan Cooney of Manchester, N. H., was denied passage because she failed to comply with the internal revenue regulations requiring payment of income tax by persons leaving the country. She expressed great disappointment.

Among passengers who had come from far distant points in an effort to get to England was H. S. Mitchell from the Dutch East Indies. After waiting for months to obtain passage, he came to Boston via Vancouver, and was accommodated by a shifting of passenger accommodations, in which a woman physician, Dr. B. F. Stroogman, gave up her stateroom to be accommodated elsewhere. Hugh F. Pilgrim, unable to secure passage from the British West Indies, was another passenger on the Elysia.

Great annoyance to passengers was caused by the strict regulations which are a relic of war days. These include rigid passport requirements, and many other formalities which necessitate six photographs of the subject to be attached to different documents. Agent Charles V. Dacey of the line said today that he had received assurances that these conditions would be ameliorated by October 1.

Washington, Sept. 26.—All persons desiring to leave the United States, whether they are aliens or American citizens, must first appear before the collector of internal revenue for the district in which they last resided and satisfy all income tax obligations, according to a ruling announced today by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

BRITAIN TO ABANDON ITS GREAT AIR SERVICE

London, Sept. 26.—The British government, after spending hundreds of millions of dollars during the war in building up the world's greatest air service, has decided to abandon control and ownership of aerial transport and plans to turn over practically the entire fleet of lighter than air machines to a private airship combine for commercial use. This action was forced by the ruthless reduction of expenditures in all government departments. Britain's largest airship builders have been approached with propositions for the purchase of all the lighter than air machines owned by the government.

ELECTROCUTE NEGRO AS HE CALLS FOR MERCY

Columbus, O., Sept. 26.—One of the most pitiful electrocutions in many years took place at the penitentiary here today. With tears streaming down his cheeks, and calling upon God for mercy between sobs, James Morgan, fifty-one, negro, was executed for killing Aleck Grant, Wabash railroad conductor. He said he shot Grant in self defence.

$15,000 BONDS TO BAIL EMMA GOLDMAN

Noted Anarchist Will Be Freed from Prison Then Re-arrested Tomorrow

By Universal Service.

New York, Sept. 26.—Emma Goldman, now imprisoned in the Missouri penitentiary at Jefferson City, Mo., will be released Saturday, immediately re-arrested as a preliminary to deportation, and bailed with $15,000 in Liberty Bonds sent for the purpose to the commissioner general of immigration. It was announced by her attorney, Harry Weinberger. He said she will come to New York at once with Stella Ballantine, her niece.

Arrangements have also been made, Weinberger said, to furnish Liberty Bonds to the amount of $15,000 as bail for Alexander Berkman, whose release from the Federal prison at Atlanta on October 3 is likewise to be followed by his re-arrest for deportation.

CROOKER CALLS PARTY PRIMARY WORTHLESS

Because of what he declared to be the utter worthlessness of the party primary, as demonstrated Tuesday, Attorney Conrad W. Crooker announced today that he had accepted the nomination of the Prohibition party and a Progressive indorsement for the office of Attorney-General. Mr. Crooker said that there is an earnest desire on the part of the voters that this constitutional office be taken out of politics. Prohibition has become a part of the organic law of the country, according to Mr. Crooker, adding that it was of the utmost importance that the man elected to the office of Attorney-General of Massachusetts this year shall be known to stand four square upon this proposition.

COLD WAVE FROM WEST DUE HERE WITH FROST

Boston and Northfield, Vt., were the coldest places in New England at 8 a. m. today, with the mercury at 58 degrees, and Nantucket, at 60, was the warmest. The temperature will go still lower, as a cold wave from the West is due to reach this vicinity tonight, bringing a light frost to the valleys and lowlands of New England. Tender vegetation is likely to be nipped, and cranberry growers are warned to protect their crops. White River, Ont., was the coldest recorded spot, at 22 degrees, and Key West, Fla., the warmest, at 78.

WOMAN FRUIT THIEF BUSY IN ARLINGTON

A man and a woman have been busy of late stealing fruit in the Kensington Park district of Arlington. The latest complaint lodged with the police is the theft of a couple of bushels of grapes by this pair, who, armed with searchlights and a capacious bag, operate after property owners have retired for the night. The police have a good description of the thieves and arrests are imminent.

RAYMOND'S

Just a year ago today the Gaspiperacks were discovered and according to all established modern proudstore methods we should attempt to pump you so full of hot air about an "Anniversary Sale" that you'l bust; ought to try to make you believe we're going to pooty near give away everything in the store on account of it, going to slaughter our goods and lose money in seven different languages on account of this anniversary, but even if the writer of this had the fool characteristics of the above methods, he would still have too much horse sense to insult the intelligence of our customers and friends with such rubbish.

This is what we had to say about the opening of the store Sept. 28th, 1918:

Nothing But Men's Clothing

Nothing nice except the clothing.

Nothing SOLD, but you are welcome to buy if the clothing suits you.

Nothing forced upon you by slick-tongued clerks.

No flowers, no music (stores which open with a band are usually closed by the sheriff), no fancy fixtures. All our clothing racks are made up by our own employees from ordinary gas pipe, nothing to pay for but the clothing you buy and carry away with you.

Since that time things have happened. The Hun is in the hole and the Gaspiperacks are the most popular racks except hay racks of any racks in New England. Wonder why—I'm not going to attempt to tell you; you know a darnsightbettern I, 'cause if you didn't know bettern I, they wouldn't be popular.

You fellers are the ones who caused all the trouble. We got nothing to do with it only pay the rent and unlock the doors so you can come in and help yourself and pay at the desk, and we don't even pay the rent; the common people who make this store their headquarters, who leave their homes with the direct intention of coming here, who enjoy the free and easy methods, who like the common atmosphere of common people, who are not fools enough to believe a merchant can sell goods at a loss and still pay dividends, who want honest merchandise at honest prices, who are just as pleased at the almost unbelievable development of this store as we are; these are the fellers and girls who pay the rent and who have caused this Democratic store to be the most talked about of any in the country.

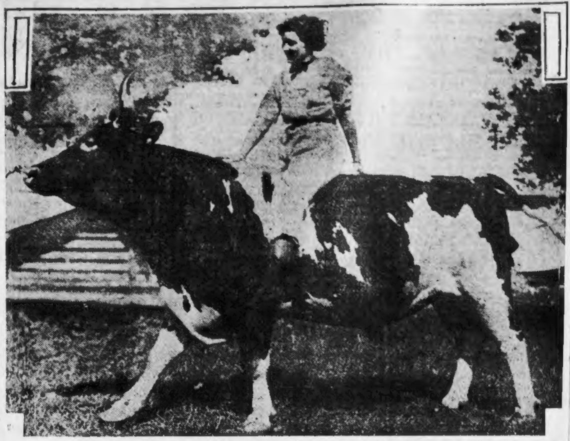
OFF FOR A QUIET RIDE ON A TON OF BEEF



The mere mention of the word "bull" will have the ordinary girl reaching for the smelling salts, but Jane Lucille Ager is made of sterner stuff. So when her "boss," Raymond Hitchcock, took her out to the Readville fair, she jumped at the chance to ride the monarch of the cattle herd on exhibition there.

Miss Jane Lucille Ager learned to ride on her father's farm near Sharon Centre, Ohio. She galloped about the place on everything from the young calf to the wildest horse. So when invited to take a ride on the champion bull in the cattle exhibit of the Readville Fair she accepted unhesitatingly. She said she enjoyed it.

While she was growing up on the farm, friends noticed that she had an exceptionally good voice and persuaded her to take up vocal study. Later came an offer of a place as soloist in the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church at Cleveland, more commonly known as "John D. Rockefeller's Church." It was there that Raymond Hitchcock heard her and engaged her as a principal for his "Hitchy-Koo," now playing in Boston.

Miss Ager has also posed for Charles Dana Gibson and was the subject of several of that artist's magazine covers. She was the "Mona Lisa" with Maude Adams in "A Kiss for Cinderella," while that piece was playing in Boston.

NEW BEDFORD MILL CLOSES; DUE TO STRIKE

New Bedford, Sept. 26.—Operations at the plant of the Beacon Manufacturing Company are suspended as a result of a strike of the loom-fixers who demand time and a half for overtime and the privilege of taking fifteen minutes to wash up before the regular closing hour. It is the first time in years that a strike of this nature has been called by the Loom-fixers' Union.

FORCED TO EARN OWN LIVING, SAYS WIFE

Somerville Woman Asks for Divorce, Also Custody of Children

Charging that she was forced to conduct a lodging house and work in a Boston hotel because her husband failed to support her, Mrs. Grace H. Kievenaer of Somerville is suing Oscar W. Kievenaar of the same city for divorce.

Mrs. Kievenaar further charges abuse and confirmed habits of intoxication. The case was heard in the Middlesex Superior Court before Judge Fox. They were married in Nashua, N. H., in December, 1910.

Mrs. Kievenaar has asked for the custody of the two minor children and sufficient alimony for their support. The suit was contested by her husband.

When Kievenaar took the stand, he said that he was in the habit of taking one or two drinks a day, but never indulged to excess. Judge Fox took the case under advisement.

NO U. S. MARINES AT FIUME, SAYS DANIELS

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels denies the reports that American marines were landed near Fiume in connection with the D'Annunzio revolt.

The secretary declares that the American naval squadron in the Adriatic is acting as it would under similar circumstances anywhere else in the world; that it was there to look after American lives and property and beyond this it was taking no part in the Fiume affair.

GOES TO PARIS TO OBTAIN DIVORCE

Daughter of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury Seeks Freedom Under French Laws

By Universal Service.

New York, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Louise Cromwell Brooks, daughter of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, has established a residence in France for the purpose of bringing suit for divorce under the French laws against Captain Walter B. Brooks, Jr., of Baltimore. This news has just reached here.

Although it has been known for some time that Captain and Mrs. Brooks were at odds temporarily, the news of the contemplated suit for divorce will come as a shock to their friends in this city, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Newport. It is known that the Brooks and the Stotesbury families have made every possible effort to bring about a reconciliation.

Members of both families were reluctant to discuss the matter, but Mrs. E. T. Stoesbury consented to make this brief statement:

"My daughter, Mrs. Brooks and her brother, James Cromwell, went over to Paris this Summer to join Captain Brooks. After Mr. Cromwell met Captain Brooks they decided that it would be for the best happiness of all if the couple should live apart.

"It was thereupon decided that Mrs. Brooks could institute divorce proceedings in France, she having established a residence there. Their respective families, while deploring this separation, continue to enjoy the most intimate and friendly relations."

Captain and Mrs. Brooks' two young children have spent the Summer at York Harbor, Me.

Royalty's Gifts to Wilson May Start Senate Probe

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Declaring that the mystery of President Wilson's reported acceptance of lavish gifts from foreign potentates bids fair to become a national scandal unless satisfactorily cleared up, Representative Rodenberg, Republican, of Illinois, has introduced a resolution calling for a sweeping investigation.

If the reports are accurate, Mr. Rodenberg charged, the President has plainly violated the constitution. He added, however, that he was loath the believe this was the case.

"If the rumors are without foundation," the Illinois member said, "the President is being subjected to a great injustice, and is entitled to an exoneration."

LECTURES FOR ORGANIZED LABOR

Registration for Trade Union College Will Open on October 3

Announcement was made today that registration for the Trade Union College, established by the Boston Central Labor Union, would take place Thursday, October 2; Friday, October 3, and Saturday, October 4.

Registration will take place in the office of the Central Labor Union, No. 987 Washington street, from 8 to 10 in the evening, and applicants may register before October 2, at the office of the secretary 1260 Little Building.

Courses in English composition, practice in discussion, masterpieces of literature, philosophy, history and government, law, economics, development of trade unions, the principles of mechanics, are offered. The lectures will be given in the High School of Practical Arts, Roxbury, from 8 to 10 in the evening, by a staff of competent instructors including professors from Harvard, Yale and Cornell Universities and Wellesley and Simmons Colleges.

Interest in the college, founded in the conviction that organized labor must develop its intellectual resoudces, has been stimulated by lecturing of former students, who are speaking at meetings of local unions. The eagerness with which these students have undertaken the task of spreading information about the labor college, and the keen interest manifested by the locals, is believed to pressage a heavy enrollment.

PLAN WHIST IN AID OF BELGIAN SISTERS

Army Officer Takes "Veil of Poverty," Says Edwards

"The man who asks today for a commission in the army takes the veil of poverty and grows up with fewer comforts than those which are given to the laborer's wife and children."

This was the statement today of General Clarence R. Edwards, in a discussion at army headquarters on prevailing high prices. He added: "On account of the high cost of living an officer below field rank cannot ask a gentlewoman to be his wife, unless she has independent means."

Colonel Karl Hartman, Signal Corps commander, who has been more than twenty-three years in the service, told of instances in which army officers had had to throw themselves on the mercy of landlords, begging the latter not to increase rents.

"It is only loyalty to the government that holds many officers in the army and keeps them from resigning," said he.

NORTH ADAMS TROLLEY SERVICE MAY RESUME

Richmond entertaining hope that the Boston and Albany Railroad can be induced to lift its $60,000 attachment on coal of the Berkshire Street Railway Company, prospects for an early resumption of service, which has been suspended for seven weeks since the trolleymen went on strike, has become brighter.

It is expected the company will make another application for receivership appointment, the previous application having been denied.

MENNEN
CREAM
DENTIFRICE
ANTISEPTIC — EFFICIENT

To the DRUGGISTS of New England

Nearly a year ago Mennen Cream Dentifrice was first introduced in New York City. Being a new product, it was unknown both to druggists and consumers.

In two months, it was on sale in 90% of New York drug stores and in three months was well up among the leaders in sales. Since then the sales have mounted steadily, proving that people keep on using it in preference to other dentifrices.

Several of the leading druggists have told us that in their experience no other toilet article has ever won so quick and tremendous a success in New York.

What were the real reasons back of this success?

It was not merely advertising, for other dentifrices, which have been popular for years, were more heavily advertised during the period when Mennen's was being introduced.

The name "Mennen" helped, of course, for the public has associated that name with worthy products for over forty years; but we must look beyond the name for the true reason.

It was certainly not the price, for Mennen's costs 35 cents for a tube no larger than many 25 cent dentifrices.

The real reason was that Mennen Cream Dentifrice is based upon a natural law which for some strange reason has not only been overlooked but has actually been seriously violated in the past.

This law is that saliva, being alkaline, is Nature's provision for destroying the products of food decay which are the chief cause of tooth destruction.

An ample flow of saliva will preserve teeth, providing they are kept clean by regular brushing. The greatest danger to teeth is a checking of the flow of saliva.

Yet it is an actual fact that many dentifrices have a tendency to paralyze the salivary glands and stop the secretion of saliva, exposing teeth to the unchecked ravages of acids of food decay.

Dentists have recognized this for some time and have warned patients to avoid dentifrices which are strongly alkaline.

Mennen Cream Dentifrice encourages the flow of saliva. It contains a mild fruit acid, which stimulates the salivary glands and increases the secretion, alkalinity and flow of saliva for a considerable time after using.

Users learn very quickly that Mennen's cleans and polishes teeth and breaks down tartar formations as no other dentifrice has ever done; that it does not leave the mouth parched and dry but on the contrary has a most refreshing after effect, causing the mouth to water as it does after eating acidulous fruit.

A 20% content of alcohol serves as a conditioner of the gums and exerts an antiseptic action.

To sum up:—It is because Mennen's is a truly scientific dentifrice and aids Nature instead of interfering with her laws; because it is highly efficient as a cleansing agent; and because it keeps the teeth in splendid condition that it has won instant recognition and general consumption wherever it has been introduced.

We suggest the advantage to you, as a merchant and as a guardian of the health of your community, of placing Mennen Cream Dentifrice on sale in your store and instructing your salesmen concerning the soundness of the Mennen principle.

an honest Dentifrice

Mennen Cream Dentifrice costs 35 cents and the tube is smaller than many dentifrices costing 25 cents, but only ⅓ inch of Mennen's is required instead of the usual inch or more—hence it really is very economical.

TEACHERS' PAY CAMPAIGN POPULAR

Agitation Begun by American for Larger Salaries Meets General Approval

The agitation begun by the American for increased salaries for Boston school teachers is meeting with enthusiastic support all through Greater Boston. Judge Michael H. Sullivan, chairman of the Boston School Committee, states the committee is unanimously in favor of salary raises for the elementary teachers, the majority of whom are getting less than $1,000 a year.

From the Mayor's office came a statement that only the Legislature could raise the salary of teachers. To which Judge Sullivan replied that he and those working with him to make the teachers' salary increases a fact, are quite aware of that fact; but that they want to educate all Boston on the question, so that when the Legislature convenes that body will pass the necessary legislation without delay.

AMERICAN IS PRAISED.

Boston is the most enacting city in choosing her teachers, said Judge Sullivan. "I know of no city where merit counts for a teacher so much as in Boston. And the pay is very small.

Letters complimenting the American for taking up the matter of increasing teachers' salaries are pouring into the American office in every mail, indicating that the general public is taking a lively interest in the matter.

In an interview Judge Sullivan declined to state what he believed the the minimum salary for school teachers should be. It is now $696. He said that the matter was up for discussion at every meeting of the committee.

"We are preparing an exhaustive table of comparisons which will show the salaries paid in other leading cities of the country, together with the requirements made of teachers in each place and the cost of living there.

"We are not unmindful of the taxpayers' burden," said Judge Sullivan, "but we will not allow it to lower the standards which have been fixed in our schools.

"Of course everything rests with the Legislature. The table in preparation is primarily for their benefit and by it we expect to prove that Boston teachers are entitled to a raise."

Regarding an anonymous communication which appeared in print through the medium of the Mayor's office, Judge Sullivan declined to comment.

"Anyone who pays any attention to anonymous letters is looking for trouble," he said. "I never do and I don't know anyone who does."

Writing to the American, Winifred David, R. N., of No. 56 Lowell street, Somerville, says: "The pay given to teachers and nurses is hardly an adequate living wage for the standards and preparations expected of them." She goes on to detail the time a teacher spends in preparatory work, and then asks if it isn't a waste of time for young women to devote their time to such work.

ASKS PAY WEEKLY.

An instructor at the English High School states that being paid monthly instead of weekly is a hardship to the teachers. He states that he has already called this matter to the attention of the Mayor, who replied that to change the present system to one of weekly payments would require a big expenditure for auditing expenses. The writer of the letter believes that some means should be found to pay the teachers each week.

Escaping Prisoners Thought Lost in Shirley Gut

Two Deer Island prisoners are believed to have perished in the whirlpools of Shirley Gut in an attempt to escape from the institute on Tuesday evening.

The two men, Floyd Johnson, aged twenty-five years, of De-Queen, Ark., serving a sentence of two years for malicious assault, and Harry O. Jones of Watertown, serving thirty months for breaking and entering, were members of a class of 100 prisoners in attendance at the evening school conducted at the House of Correction for the benefit of those who desire to avail themselves of educational privileges when they disappeared.

COLLECTOR MALLEY TO TAKE UP LAW PRACTICE

Internal Revenue Collector John F. Malley, who resigns on October 1 to take up the practice of law, when asked relative to his resignation, said: "I have been desirous of resigning for the past two years, but the war came on and I felt it was my duty to put my personal desires aside and remain in office, feeling that with the war taxes coming the office needed men of experience."

URGES REFERENDUM ON MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

New Bedford, Sept. 26.—The local Central Labor Union has started an agitation to have municipal ownership of the local street railway system placed on the ballot as a referendum at the city election. Mayor Ashley has advised against this step, urging the labor delegates to wait until the Legislature has received the report of the street railway commission which is expected to deal exhaustively with the subject.

DR. KELLY OPPOSES SEX HYGIENE TEACHING

Portland, Me., Sept. 26.—Dr. Eugene Kelly of Boston opposed the teaching of sex hygiene in the public schools in an address before the State conference of Charities and Corrections.

He also denounced the commercial exhibition of films showing the effect of disease.

HARVARD 'GRADS' PERFECT DRIVE TONIGHT

Meet at College Club to Complete Organization of Work for Big Fund

With the opening day for securing Metropolitan Boston's share of the world-wide endowment fund of $15,250,000 only five days away, "Old Grads" and "Young Grads" and "In-Between Grads" of Harvard University to the number of 1,000 will gather tonight at the Harvard Club for a "smoker," rally and "send-off," and tomorrow will participate in an unusual visit to the university itself.

Many of Greater Boston's approximately 11,000 graduates have not visited their alma mater recently and have expressed a desire to familiarize themselves with the Harvard of today, its present conditions and needs before they visit their college associates of other days, and their business and social intimates and acquaintances of the present as fund team members.

Accordingly, President A. Lawrence Lowell has arranged for their reception and guidance. There will be a committee at University Hall to meet the "Grads" and they will be accompanied wherever they wish. Some will go to the dormitories, others to the classrooms where the students are gathered to see "how it is done today." Still others will visit the laboratories. In all departments there will be authorities to explain whatever is asked.

Tonight the gathering will comprise the major part of 100 team members who will take subscriptions among the occupation groups. They will be given final instructions and a send-off. All Harvard men have been divided into groups by occupations.

Tonight's meeting will be one of instruction concerning the "business" of working for the endowment fund. Robert R. Gardiner, Jr., will explain the details of the various plans of the general canvass committee of which he is chairman.

Professor F. E. Taussig, who is expected back in time for the meeting, having been traveling in the Middle West with President Lowell, Eliot Wadsworth, alternate chairman of the national committee, and others on an endowment fund speaking tour, will be another speaker. Thomas Nelson Perkins, chairman of the Greater Boston committee of the Harvard Endowment Fund, will talk generally of the fund work.

PASTOR RAPS MORALITY OF ARMY OFFICERS

The Rev. Dr. Albert C. Dieffenbach, a Boston Unitarian minister, who has recently returned from a tour of France, Germany and England, scores junior officers in the army and calls them a "scarlet shame."

"The army as a whole took rum and women too much for granted," claims this pastor, who is now lecturing on his experiences abroad in this city.

"There is need of a rock bottom religious basis for the development of morale on the sex problem in peace as well as in war," he said.

"Some of the officers, especially in junior grades, were more offensive in their actions in Paris than in England," he added.

DEMOCRATS MAY GIVE UP TWO-THIRDS RULE

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 26.—Two radical changes or administration will be considered by the executive committee of the Democratic National Committee, which began a two days' session here today behind closed doors. The proposed changes are:

1—To abolish the two-thirds nomination rule and make selection by a majority vote in the same manner as the Republicans.

2—To distribute the headquarters of the national committee according to a zone plan, thus dividing the country into districts, each having its separate national headquarters.

There is considerable sentiment among the Democratic leaders here in favor of former Secretary of the Treasurer William McAdoo as the next Democratic presidential nominee

Safety First in Boys' Clothing

We say "Safety First" because there are several things which are important to consider other than just the appearance when new—or the price.

First—If the colors fade in your boy's suit—you face the problem of having to buy another suit.

What advantage do we offer as to dyes?

Even during the war we guaranteed the color of our boys' suits. We do so now, and we expect to be able to continue this satisfactory policy.

And we guarantee the wear.

This means we must maintain a very high standard in our fabrics—and assures you that when you buy a boy's suit here you can be sure of the quality.

Think of these two guarantees at White's when you are thinking of buying the boy his suit.

If you've never visited the "Boys' Own Store," let this be an incentive to do so this week.

You will find that while we give first attention to the quality of the materials and the way the suit is made—the fact that the prices are as low or lower than prevailing prices, assures you that you get better value here.

And then—do you know about the "Secret Service Feature" that we attach to every pair of trousers—without charge?

VON TIRPITZ ASSAILS 'POLITENESS' TO U. S.

RECALLS CLASH BETWEEN DEWEY AND DIEDERICHS

VON TIRPITZ MEMOIRS

By ALFRED VON TIRPITZ,
Grand Admiral of the German Navy.

When Germany fairly slid into the war in 1914, one of the gravest consequences of this terrible fact was that we served to consolidate and unify the various interests of the Anglo-Saxon peoples of the world, dominated by England. The well-developed sense of Anglo-Saxon common responsibility, which hitherto had been more or less passive in world affairs, and sometimes working at cross purposes, was by our act forged to burst into full maturity almost overnight, instead of being sent, as we should have sent it, into eternal sleep.

The sympathies of the American people were not roused against us by the invasion of Belgium. It was because their natural liking lay with England. Any nation with the history of the United States during the Spanish War days, and which regarded the explosion of the powder magazine inside the battleship Maine as a crime, in order to annex Cuba, would, of course, have looked upon the invasion of Belgium with a very cold eye, if it had agreed with American interests.

(Editor's Note — Von Tirpitz lapses in both his premises here. The best naval opinion is that the Maine was blown up by a mine. We did not, of course, annex Cuba, nor was there any such intention.)

America is a world-conquering power, no matter what may be the opinion of the foolish German Democrats. They still seem to refuse to realize this fact, in the face of so many of its manifestations. From the very first day of the war, the outward superiority of our enemies brought the Americans to a quick conviction that we could not win, and therefore they defined their attitude toward us on this principle, deeming us as foreordained losers.

In spite of this American attitude of antipathy toward Germany and all things German, the United States was not ready for war against us from 1914 to 1916, and she would never have dared fall upon the fearless German war policy. What really brought America out into the open were, first, the length of the war, which brought about a growing intertwining of American interests with those of the entente, second, the military needs of England, and third and foremost, the illusory, dilatory and zigzag policy of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, which transmuted Us prestige in President Wilson's favor.

Included in the latter category perhaps, but deserving of special emphasis, was Foreign Secretary Zimmermann's letter to our Minister to Mexico, von Eckhardt. This astounding blunder made President Wilson's task easy, for it prepared and facilitated America's entrance into the war in April, 1917, whereas, without it's aid, Wilson would have had the far greater difficulty in accomplishing this. In fact, I believe that the President even then might not have chose the lot of the allies if I had carried my point for a general submarine campaign in 1916.

TOOK GERMANS SERIOUSLY.

Although the natural sympathies of the Americans were with the English at all times, there existed, apart from this, strong inclinations toward good, business-like relations between the policy of the United States and our policy. Before the war, indeed, the Americans took Germany very seriously in every respect, and, in spite of their false collective idea of Europe, they had a fine feeling for our rising power and a sober respect for the possibilities it contained.

They were already reckoning with this contingency: that the remarkable and praiseworthy changes in our economic policy, and our rapid political development, were making Germany overhaul England hand over fist. At the same time, too, the American people regarded themselves as the natural heirs of the British colonies in the western hemisphere.

If we had only waited for affairs to develop as they were sure to do in times of peace, then those interests which were common to the United States and Germany would have grown by natural processes from year to year.

As far back as 1902, when the tension among the European powers on the one hand, and that fiery Latin-American political figure, General Cipriano Castro, president-dictator of Venezuela, on the other, made it apparent that there was trouble in store for America as guardian of the Monroe Doctrine, it was England who backed down on the plan to bring Castro to book. It became evident to me then that the interests of Germany were not to be spared in any cases where both the great Anglo-Saxon powers had to deal with them in common.

Whether the upshot of it all would be that England eventually would really become "the forty-ninth star in the Stars and Stripes," as the American naval attache in London said to our naval attache, was secondary matter for us.

(Editor's Note: The American naval attache in London at the time of which Von Tirpitz speaks was Commander Richardson Clover, now a retired rear admiral living in Washington. Commander Clover went to London from duties with the naval strategy board, under the leadership of then Assistant Secretary Theodore Roosevelt. He was popular socially in England. Dispatches from Washington on December 18, 1901, while Commander Clover temporarily was in this country, quoted him as saying the British Admiralty countenanced the display of propaganda showing the alleged weak condition of the British navy. Later Commander Clover issued a qualified denial of this statement.)

At the beginning of this century, England had considered for the last time whether or not she would turn upon and attempt to destroy the United States, and had decided not to do so. But our sentimental politeness toward the United States did not improve the situation, in my opinion. My personal impressions took the same line as my political experiences.

"SKEPTICAL YANKEES."

It was painful for me to have to consider the festivities in connection with the Kaiser's presentation to the United States of the statue of Frederick the Great, which was erected in front of the Army War College in Washington during Roosevelt's administration, November 19, 1904. This was a gift from us to the skeptical Yankees. In connection with the numerous expressions of good-will, and possible frankness, during this occasion, I never heard the allusion, which some personages seemed to entertain, and which was so fatally prevalent with Germany, that the power of America might become at some time, and somehow a useful assistant against the British dictatorship of the seas.

Moreover, among all the greater navies, I always put the lowest estimate possible on that of the United States as an asset to us in times of emergency. In fact, it was the naval policy of Germany to treat the United States Navy as a passive element, regarding it as little a peril as the French Navy, which watched us with a certain jealousy because the German Navy was constantly attaining a much higher fighting value, although our building expenditure was less than France's by many billions of marks.

The longer our young sea power was established, the more numerous and free were our chances in world politics. Thus, provided peace could have been maintained between England and Germany, the eventual development of fruitful relations between America and ourselves was not altogether out of the question.

As far back at 1898, during the memorable naval events in the Far East growing out of the Spanish-American war, our relations with America had undergone a needless change for the worse. On the appearance of the German squadron off Manila in 1898, commanded by Admiral von Diederichs, and which was stronger than the squadron under Commodore Dewey, there were ticklish relations between the two navies. Admiral von Diederichs was in imminent peril of a clash at arms with the American commodore victor of the battle of Manila Bay.

Cool headedness was indeed needed by us at that time, and on the occasion of the collision between Dewey and von Diederichs, the danger of a conflict was averted by the then Flag Lieutenant of the Admiral, Baron von Hintze, later secretary of state, and German minister to Mexico during the Vera Cruz troubles and Huerta's machinations. By his diplomacy von Hintze upheld the German honor.

The United States at that time had just stepped into the arena of international politics with a very definite purpose in view, and there remained as an aftermath of the von Diederichs incident the suspicion that we had made an unsuccessful attempt to poach upon the preserves which the Americans had discovered first. This vexation was skilfully fed by Eenglish press propaganda and, aided by British diplomacy, swelled the suspicion that we were cherishing intentions on American territory.

Two years before this incident, when it appeared that Spain was in for the possible loss of the Philippine islands, and the certainty of a long-sustained revolt by the native population, the people of the islands were anxious for Germany to establish a protectorate there. I visited the Philippines officially in 1896 with our Far Eastern squadron, and the islanders were then at war with the Spaniards.

Their representatives approached me at that time with this protectorate idea. One of the leaders of the rebels had been condemned to be put to death by the Spanish military authorities, and they tried to persuade me to save him. Naturally, I refused to intervene in this way and, so far as I know, the idea of extending the power of Germany to the Philippines was never afterward seriously considered in any quarter by us.

Throughout the great war I myself was always in favor of showing the world that Germany represented the spirit of Europe more purely and more humanely than any of our opponents, in contrast to the hypocritical brute force of the Anglo-Saxons, and in complete contradiction of the calumnies in such expressions as "Boche" and "Hun."

In this connection I often wished that we had abstained from the reply in kind to the barbarous custom, introduced by England, of interning enemy civilians. I was also against the policy of imitating the air attacks begun by the enemy upon towns and civilian populations, so long as no appreciable military damage was done. The effect of these attacks, in fact, was as a mere pin prick compared with the concentrated use of the aerial weapon for the definite and important military objectives such as the city of London, its tributary docks and similar localities.

HOW DENMARK WAS ALIENATED.

The confidence of the people of the world can only be aroused by a state which, when it possesses power, uses it both with firmness and with wisdom. I am moved to this observation by the way we fought the French propaganda in Alsace-Lorraine and the Polish propaganda in the east of Germany with full resoluteness, but failed as regards the Danish elements in Schleswig. We should not have met the further advance of Danish culture in northern Schleswig with force, but with the methods of civilization, inaugurating better schools, building more efficient railroads, etc.

(Editor's Note: Schleswig-Holstein and Lauenburg were combined into a Prussian province as a result of the seven weeks' war of 1866 between Austria and Prussia. Denmark ever after insisted that the terms of Article V. of the treaty of 1866 be carried out, providing for a plebiscite for Schleswig, which was never held.)

In this way Germany could have shown that she was able to distinguish between the merely passive and political questions, which were non-vital to her or the others concerned, and the real, vital matters which would have strengthened her ties everywhere, and held her hands in the grip of a true world-friendship. How many times over we should have been repaid during the war if we had fulfilled the heartfelt desires of those Danish patriots in the times of peace!

CONTINUED TOMORROW.

Von Tirpitz takes his readers back of the German battle lines on the western front and paints a remarkable picture of the Kaiser after his headquarters had been bombed repeatedly by French airmen, in the next installment. He also describes the effect on the German High Command of the seizure of Shantung by the Japanese.

Too Much 'High Loving,' Says Poet; Write Your Ideas

Does human nature need a rest from "high loving?"

Do married people need a vacation from each other?

Would they love each other better if they were together less?

Mrs. Josephine Preston Peabody Marks of Boston, mother and poetess, says they would. American readers, what do you think? Write your ideas on the subject. Mrs. Marks says:

"Man or woman cannot spend all their day at intensest loving without needing a respite. It is better for married people to take vacations once in a while and go off alone to be with themselves and think. The right kind of love does not burn at fever heat from morn to night. The everlastingly married, with their everlasting intrusions upon each other, are making the mistake of ignorance."

Do you agree with this? If so, write! If not, write!

Here is a chance for self-expression on one of the vital subjects of all time. Send in your ideas. Other readers will be interested in them. You will be interested in those of other readers.

Address all letters to THE LOVE EDITOR, Boston American.

MINING TOWN IS UPSET BY VISIT OF 'GHOST'

"Authority" Says Visitor Is Spirit of Young Woman Slain by Indians

Greensburg, Sept. 26.—Happenings as vivid and uncanny as any of those from the pen of Poe have caused the residents of Carbon, a mining village southeast of here, no end of excitement.

On four separate occasions a figure clad in a snow-white gown has been seen weirdly flitting about the village at late hours of the night. Three times the "ghost" aroused Peter Oleson, a Norwegian miner, by strange rappings at his door. Upon opening the door Oleson declares that he saw a figure of a young woman wrapped in a white robe standing on the step.

"What do you want? Come into my house, I will not hurt you," Oleson declares he told the strange figure, but he received no answer. When he attempted to lay hands on the figure it gave a shrill cry and disappeared.

Frank Piso, an Italian living in the neighborhood, was also called to the door of his home by the "rappings" of the strange hobgoblin and had the same experience as Oleson.

William Maters, a grocer and local ghost authority, declares that the nocturnal visitor is the ghost of a very pretty young woman captured by the Indians in their flight from Eastern Pennsylvania nearly two centuries ago. In an attempt to escape her captors the girl was killed and scalped near where Carbon is now built.

"I believe that the ghost is greatly embarrassed by the changes wrought during the last few decades," said Maters.

Millbury, Sept. 26.—Bricks in the corner of the town hall building are giving away and the steps on one side of the structure have settled and are two inches from the walls. Action will be taken at the next meeting of the Selectmen.

PEACE COMES. Paris, arbiter of Fashion, rejoices. And when Paris exults she does not stop at bells and holiday-making and flags and glad cries. She rejoices in terms of brilliant nasturtium colored velvets, of luxurious Paradise feathers, of furs and plumes, of duvetyn and beaver. She creates the hat wonderful and transforms a world of women from the drab sombreness of war.

A hat is such a vibrant, sensitive thing, responsive to every influence in a nation's life. Hence France, from the richness and broadness of her experience, was never so prolific of wonderfully original hats as now.

YOU will see here at White's, again and again, the picturesque hat, with sweeping, graceful lines and swaying plumes. Then there are the dashing little duvetyn turbans, soft and supple, existing merely that a long fur tail, or a curly feather, may hang casually off at one side, from under the brim.

Never since women have been making tailored hats, and tailored hats have been "making" women, were the tailored models smarter.

Supple is the word ever on the lips of the Parisian artiste. Be your chapeau vivacious, or very much la grande dame; be it large or be it small, be it high or be it low, it must be supple.

But come and see for yourself!

Right Here--Now

—is the most unmistakable evidence of the value to the public of this Live Store's merchandising methods and policies—methods and policies that have made these Eight Kennedy Stores the largest distributors of Men's Good Clothes in America. In these days of high prices, we are thinking more of the future than of the present dollar. We have tremendous quantities of merchandise bought way under present market prices. Not as a public benefaction, but as a hard-headed business proposition, we are selling these good just as low as we can instead of for as much as we could get.

We might easily double our profits this season and still give better values for the money than almost any other store. But we are satisfied, and consider it our duty to continue to operate on our usual narrow margin and let our customers derive the extra financial advantage.

Good Clothes are so scarce this season that no man should buy any more than he actually needs lest some have to go without. But when your need becomes actual, remember that you can supply it here at a good deal less than you would have to pay in any other store we know of.

Stocks Strong in New York and Boston; Both Markets Are Quiet; Steel Issues Lead Advance

SUGARS AMONG THE TRADING LEADERS

Motors, Tires and Oils Are Also Prominent in Morning Upturn

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, but prices were not then the highest attained since the opening. Gains had been diminished by realization [illegible] professional market. Trading was of moderate volume. Sugars were among the leaders, [illegible] and motors were strong groups. All steels were showing gains or were unchanged. But U S. Steel had lost most of its advance. It was up a fraction only. At its morning highest it was up 1⅛ at 104[illegible]. [illegible] and most active equipment. Tobaccos were strong during the first hour, but weakened in the second. Crucible Steel made the largest gain during the forenoon. At its highest it was up 8⅞ [illegible].

Foreign exchange rates advanced sharply at the opening, sterling and lire being especially strong. Quotations were: Demand sterling 4.24⅝; cables 4.25⅜; franc cables 8.23. Lire were [illegible] loaned at 6 per cent.

ADVANCED AT THE OPENING.

Prices advanced at the opening, with steels in the lead. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem began with fractional gains and [illegible] point within [illegible] started [illegible] and was [illegible] at its highest [illegible] and American [illegible] several [illegible] the first [illegible]. Other [illegible] stocks [illegible] Liggett & Myers [illegible] American [illegible] Cerro de [illegible] American [illegible] can [illegible] Goodrich [illegible] ican Petroleum [illegible]. They were [illegible] almost six points higher early in the session. Some outside buying and considerable covering of shorts contributed to the upturn. Stocks were in more demand than at [illegible] this week. In [illegible] taking reduced gains.

REPORTS PLEASED TRADERS.

Early strength of the market was due to reports that steel manufacturers were gaining ground around Pittsburgh and that mills in other parts of the strike region were increasing working forces. The speculative fraternity and financial interests were pleased by such statements, and showed it by buying stocks. Regarding U. S. Steel, a New York statement is to the effect that offerings [illegible] small [illegible] indicate that the short interest has been increased and that the stock is again in an oversold condition. Trading this morning was almost wholly professional.

Copper Market Dull

The copper market is dull and prices are dropping. Large quantities of wire [illegible] copper [illegible] had at 21[illegible] per can be bought still lower. Producers still quote 23½ cents for September and 21 [illegible].

PRICES HIGHER ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

Most of the Early Trading Is Confined to a Few Issues

Firmness featured the Boston market at the opening and prices ruled higher during the morning on the local exchange. Most of the trading was in a few issues. It was largely confined to Root & Van Dervoort, Gray & Davis, American [illegible], Pond Creek and Stewart. It is stated that the new American [illegible] 6 per cent three-year notes are to be offered at 99½. Root & Van Dervoort soon sold at a new highest record price and Pond Creek at its highest for this year to date.

Most advances were small but Woolen preferred, Pond Creek, United Fruit and Swift & Co. advanced a point or more. Issues to sell fractionally higher included Root & Van Dervoort, National Leather, Copper Range, Mohawk, New Haven, Ventura and Big Heart.

Among declines were Gray & Davis, Utah Consolidated, Utah Metals, Arizona Commercial, Carson Hill, Island Creek, which sold ex-dividend, and Boston & Maine. Fractions covered their losses up to late in the forenoon. Mexican Investments was off a point.

Coppers continued inactive, but had a little better tone. They are reflecting the dearth of demand for metal.

SILVER'S PRICE STILL GOING UPWARD

Bar silver sold in London yesterday at the record highest price of 63⅝d an ounce, while in New York it was quoted at $1.18⅝ an ounce. There is renewed discussion of the possibility of its rising to $1.29 an ounce, which would fulfill the "16 to 1" political dream of 1896 without the aid of a fairy governmental godmother.

Should fine silver sell around $1.29 an ounce, the white metal would be on a parity with gold.

Silver is climbing to [illegible] because demand exceeds supply. World requirements are estimated at 100,000,000 ounces a year ahead of production.

Thrift the Bulwark of Wealth

Some of the greatest independent fortunes have been based upon THRIFT—carried out in a systematic way. If you would be thrifty, there is only one answer—SAVE.

It is not so much what a man earns today as it is what he is able to save for the declining days later in life.

SAVING is an inborn desire to prepare for unforeseen exigencies that appear in the course of human events.

Saving creates independence. No matter how small the initial amount may be, systematic pursuance of the saving habit means independence in after years.

Financial institutions welcome saving accounts—large or small. Banking your savings with reputable financial companies is a safe way to save.

Money placed in a reputable bank has far greater earning power than if carried around indiscreetly. It becomes an interest-bearing proposition from the start. It grows systematically and stimulates a greater desire to add to that "golden collection."

Therefore, if you would prepare now against tomorrow's unforeseen circumstances, practice thrift by saving a portion of your earnings.

Open a savings account TODAY with your local national bank or trust company, whose name appears here. Your money is safe with them, they'll pay you good interest—usually starting monthly—and give you the use of valuable credit and checking facilities. And the officers, being your fellow townsmen, take a personal interest in you and your success.

Be Thrifty—Save! Start Now.

DE VALERA TELLS OF ERIN'S DARK DAYS OF DEATH AND SUFFERING

DESTRUCTION OF IRELAND'S COMMERCE

By EAMON DE VALERA
President of the Irish Republic

The condition of the people of Ireland during the eighteenth century, up to the establishment of Legislative Independence, presented an appalling spectacle of poverty and misery.

Eamon De Valera.

John R. Green, the English historian, commenting on this period, states:

"For more than a century Ireland was the worst governed in Europe. England did her best to annihilate Irish commerce and to ruin Irish agriculture. Statutes passed by the jealousy of English landowners forbade the export of Irish cattle or sheep to English ports.

"The export of wool was forbidden, lest it might interfere with the profits of the English wool growers. Poverty was thus added to the curse of misgovernment; and the poverty, deepened by the growth of the native population, turned the country into a hell."—"Short History of the English People."

Eam[illegible] marked the th[illegible] quarters of [illegible] during w[illegible] the peo[illegible]ple became blotted [illegible]

"No country," says Lecky, "ever exercised a more complete control over the destinies of another than did England over those of Ireland, for three-quarters of a century after the Revolution (of 1680) * * * The commercial legislation which ruined Irish industry, the confiscation of Irish land which demoralized and impoverished the nation, were all directly due to the English government and the English Parliament."

The worst years were 1727, when thousands of families emigrated and many hundreds perished of hunger, 1728, when

"Many of the poorer sorts in the northern parts who were not able to fly from the famine perished in it and died in their native country through want of food";

1737 when there was a greater shortage than usual; 1739, which Lecky says was one of the most fearful on record; 1740-1, when

"whole parishes were almost desolate, the dead were eaten in the fields by dogs."

(Skelton: Works, Vol. 5.)

1757 when the potato crop failed; 1765, when there was a shortage of corn, and 1770, when thousands died.

DELIBERATE POLICY.

All this was the direct result of the deliberate policy of the British Government to exterminate the Irish through the destruction of their industries.

[illegible] Froude

"The English deliberately determined to keep Ireland poor and miserable as the readiest means to prevent it being troublesome."

[illegible] some time Lord [illegible] Baron of Court of Exchequer, [illegible] the course of his speech in the Irish House of Commons in 1779, said:

"The usurped authority of a foreign Parliament has kept up the most wicked laws that a jealous, monopolizing, ungrateful spirit could devise, to restrain the bounty of Providence and enslave a nation whose inhabitants are recorded to be a brave, loyal, generous people by the English code of laws, to answer the most sordid views, they have been treated with a savage cruelty; the words 'penalty,' 'punishment' and 'Ireland' are synonymous."

From the mouth of an English statesman the truth is proclaimed William Pitt, the younger, when Prime Minister, said in 1785

"The species of policy which had been exercised by the government of England in regard to Ireland had for its object to debar the latter from the enjoyment of her own resources and to make her completely subservient to the opulence and interests of England; that she had not been suffered to share in the bounties of nature or the industries of its citizens!"

The Irish Volunteers, formed in 1778 to protect the shore of Ireland—when England was unable to do so—soon numbered over 100,000 men. The British government viewed the movement with alarm, but was unable to interfere.

FARED BADLY IN WAR.

The war with France was faring badly and the American Revolutionists had shown they were quite capable of dealing with the British troops. In this predicament England found herself confronted by an armed Irish nation. The volunteers, composed for the most part of men who had suffered most from the code of commercial penal laws imposed on the country, seized the opportunity and demanded, as the inscriptions on their cannons so aptly put it: 'Free Trade (that is, freedom to trade) or——"

England understood the argument. The 'Act of Repeal' of 1782 and the "Renunciation Act" of 1783, establishing legislative independence, followed.

The demand for freedom to trade, backed up by the arms of the volunteers, resulted that, in the words of Edmund Burke,

"The British Parliament made an universal surrender of all that had been thought the peculiar, reserved, uncommunicable rights of England—the exclusive commerce of America, of Africa, of the West Indies, all the enumerations of the Acts of Navigation, all the manufactures—iron, glass, even the sacred fleece itself—all went together. No reserve, no exceptions, no debate, no discussion."

"The chain" says Froude, "was allowed to remain till it was broken by the revolt of the American Colonies, and Ireland was to learn the deadly lesson that her real wrongs would receive attention only when England was compelled to remember them through fear."

With legislative independence came progress and prosperity. Irish industries revived with marvelous vitality and flourished remarkably. [illegible] built, harbors deepened and improv[illegible] internal communication facilitated [illegible] a system of canals and waterways [illegible] linked up almost the whole country.

SHIPPING LAWS PASSED.

Shipping laws were passed f[illegible] regulation and growth of se[illegible] industries were fostered by [illegible] of [illegible] and the [illegible] manufactures encouraged [illegible] pose. Caps for the Bolsheviki Army

It's too bad they don't know about the Kid Delano designs. You know what they wear—those tall stove pipes, with a platform on top like they use in the Senate to asphyxiate the Peace Treaty. NEALE SLIGHTLY BETTER THAN CHICAGO RIGHT FIELDERS

THIS is the fourth of a series of articles on the coming World Series between the White Sox and Reds, by Hugh S. Fullerton, baseball's greatest statistician. Mr. Fullerton will compare the rival players, size up the play of the two teams and name the probable winner of the great Fall sporting classic.

HOW RIVAL RIGHT FIELDERS COMPARE

	Offensive	Defensive	Total
Chicago	758	218	976
Cincinnati	773	205	978

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Chicago and Cincinnati practically are tied in the dope on the right fielders, with the Reds leading by so scant a margin as to make it negligible for purposes of this study.

In this dope we encounter an odd freak of the dope. Both Liebold and Shano Collins, the Chicago right fielders, show a large lead over Neale in the season's batting, and Murphy who sometimes occupies the White Sox right garden, leads him tremendously.

Yet, for purposes of this series, and considering the pitchers against whom they must bat, Neale figures to be the better hitter. Liebold, of course, loses much of his hitting prestige because Moran is certain to use left handers freely in the effort to check the batting of E. Collins and Jackson, and the pitcher who can slow them up stops Liebold to a whisper. He will not, in all probability, be in the games in which either Reuther or Sallee pitches and Shano Collins will cavort in the outer garden. With Collins in right field the White Sox lose the fielding superiority given them by Liebold's speed and alertness while gaining some in hitting power.

The more one studies Neale and his batting against National League pitchers the more one becomes impressed with the idea that he is certain to do a lot of hitting in the coming series. In fact, unless James gets a chance to work, it looks to me as if Neale is going to be quite as hard a problem for Gleason's twirlers as Roush is.

ERRATIC BASERUNNER.

Neale, admittedly, is not a great fielder—barely up to the average, as a matter of fact, and unfinished in the way he makes plays. Nor is he remarkable for thinking out plays or making them precisely. He is much the same type of player as is Shano Collins, but younger and less experienced. He is far from being a finished product, but he has speed and aggressiveness. In the base running end of the game we find at the same time his strength and his liability to blunder. He is not really a good base runner, but he steals a lot of bases besides getting caught a lot of times. He takes chances, sometimes wild ones, and in a World's Series against a finished catcher like Schalk he cannot take many such chances as he has been getting away with against some of the catchers. I find, however, that Neale has made almost as many steals against the above average catchers in his league as he has against the second raters who predominate in that circuit.

Compared with Liebold Neale is neither as good a waiter nor as good a hitter in season. He probably will not prove so good a waiter in series. Since Liebold must face only pitchers against whom he is supposed to [illegible] beat he should have an advantage but he does not [illegible] Eller or Ring well and if [illegible] have control he cannot be expected to do much hitting. Nor does [illegible] figure to hit Reuther or Sallee although he may land a hard w[illegible] against Sallee. Shano is, of [illegible] a "swinger," and fast pitching [illegible] him up at all times.

NEALE UNDERESTIMATED.

It seems to me that the [illegible] who have overestimated [illegible] of the players on the Red[illegible] have rather underestimated Ne[illegible] Their judgment may be quite correct so far as his performances [illegible] the regular season are concerned [illegible] for this series he figures very high. All the awkwardness and unfinished style attributed to him has little bearing. He can run, he covers the ground and, if he does catch balls out of position, he is not more likely to do that than either Liebold, who frequently makes catches while all twisted out of shape, or Shano Collins, who gets there by sheer strength and awkwardness.

If I were attempting to choose a player most liable to do a lot of hard and timely hitting in this series, I would pick Neale. He is of that type, and his style appears suited well to the White Sox pitchers. In fact, I think he will hit them all excepting Cicotte, who will puzzle him. Neale never has seen that kind of pitching and the result may be that he will start swinging wildly and connect by accident if at all. He will hit Williams surely, and probably will hit Kerr.

COLLINS WONDERFUL PLAYER, DECLARES MANAGER

By WILLIAM (KID) GLEASON.

Manager of the Chicago White Sox

I want to tell you about the most wonderful ball player in baseball and he's going to play second base for me in the World's Series against the Reds. You know now the fellow I mean—Eddie Collins.

There are a lot of great players, but in thirty years I've never been around with such a fellow as Collins. I tell you honestly, some of the things he does on the ball field aren't human. And he's always doing something. You know what I mean, the little things that not many of the fans see but the things that help to win the game.

In the first place, he's a swell hitter and a corking fielder, and about as fast and smart a base runner as there is in the game. He's got muscles in his legs like the muscles of a cat and he's got a brain just popping with ideas all the time. He's never still and neither is his brain.

After the World's Series of 1917, when we beat the Giants, John McGraw had a few words to say about the series and about Collins in particular, and McGraw ought to know something about Eddie because his team bucked against him three times in the big post-season show, twice while Eddie was with the Athletics and once with us. This is what he said:

"Eddie Collins is one of the greatest players of them all under ordinary conditions. In big things he's at his best."

SIZES UP PLAYS.

Collins can see a play quicker than anybody and when he sees the chance, he never hesitates. He goes through with it and he's always right. Did you ever see him do the wrong thing on the ball field? I've been watching him a long time now and I never saw him make a mistake. Now don't misunderstand me. I mean he never made a mistake in thinking. Of course he's liable to boot one occasionally, but that's excusable.

The way he runs bases sometimes I wonder if he hasn't got eyes in the back of his head. He's the only fellow I ever saw who can keep up his speed on the bases and still be looking behind him. For instance, suppose he's on first base and plays hit-and-run with the batter and the batter hits one to right field.

KNOWS WHAT IS DOING.

If the fellow out in right field know it although at the time he will have rounded second base and be on his way to third with his back to the play. He'll know, too, whether he can keep on going to the plate or whether he must stop at third.

He's the best man I ever saw in breaking up the double steal. If you've watched him in many games you've seen him do it. He always runs in a short distance in front of second base to take the throw in case the runner on third tries to go home. If the runner on third sticks to the bag Eddie lets the ball go on to Risberg who will make a play on the fellow going from first to second.

HARD TO PITCH TO.

I'm not going to try to compare Collins to Morris Rath, the second baseman of the Reds. However, I feel safe in declaring Collins much the better batter. There aren't many fellows in the game harder to pitch to than Collins. Just ask any pitcher in the American League about that. He has a wonderful eye and knows when a ball is outside, too high or too low. It is seldom he swings at a bad one, unless he's playing hit-and-run with the base runner, and then he generally can do something with that ball even if it is a bad one.

In the World's Series of 1917, Buck Herzog was playing second base for New York, and in the final game, with Benton pitching, Collins took a swing at a bad ball. Herzog turned to Billy Evans, who was umpiring on the bases, and said: "That's the first bad ball I've seen Collins swing at in the three World's Series I've played against him."

Here's a funny thing about Collins. He's superstitious. When he goes to bat he has his chewing gum stuck on the button on top of his cap. If the pitcher gets two strikes on him he takes the gum off his cap and puts it in his mouth. He never has it in his mouth unless there are two strikes called. You'd laugh to see him dressing in the clubhouse after the game. He thinks there's luck in putting on his pants the last thing. Well, if we're going good he will not allow the luck to be changed. He puts on all his clothes, including collar, tie, hat and coat and then puts on his pants. Nobody tries to stop him either.

Let Eddie Collins be as superstitious as he wants to. He's going to do things in the world's series and I know he's going to star.

Cravath Signs to Manage Phillies for Two Years

Philadelphia, Sept. 26.—The Phils are to be piloted by their present mentor for two seasons more, "Gavvy" Cravath signing up for that period with President Baker. The latter expressed himself as satisfied with what Cravath had done during his two and a half months as a big league pilot.

"Gavvy" will have a free foot in trading off and signing players. Many of the present outfit will be swapped during the Winter.

FAVORITES WIN ALL FOUR GRAND CIRCUIT EVENTS

Columbus, O., Sept. 26.—It was a great day for the first choice horses at the Grand Circuit meeting on the driving park, all four events on the card going to the favorites in betting.

After dropping the first heat, Prince Loree won the 2.06 trot. Goldie King was 4 to 1 choice for the pacing futurity and won, two heats in three.

Roy Grattan took the 2.18 pace and Louie Grattan the 2.03 pace in straight heats.

SYRACUSE FUMBLES LITTLE ON WET FIELD

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 26.—An hour's signal drill and a ten minute scrimmage with the husky freshmen eleven was on the program for the Syracuse University eleven. It was raining while the men were drilling and it gave the coaches a good chance to get a line on the players under adverse conditions. There were few fumbles, despite the rain.

Moran Describes How He Built Up Reds

By PAT MORAN.

Manager of the Reds.

As I look back at my earliest days as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, I admit that there was plenty of reason for the discouragement that sometimes came to me—but which I concealed from my players.

Everything broke wrong at the beginning and it was a long, long time before they began breaking the other way.

I'd been told that I was falling heir to "the worst ball club in America," but my informants were in error. I didn't have a ball club at all when I assumed the managerial job. Instead of a complete infield I had only a third baseman. I found that Earle Neale was the only outfielder who had come to terms. Ivy Wingo was "the catching staff" and the pitchers either were rookies or men who had been found wanting by other leaders.

Chase, Magee, Kopf and Groh made up the 1918 Cincinnati infield. Of the four, only Groh remained. Chase had been shipped along to the Giants. Magee was a holdout and Kopf had been traded to the Dodgers. Eddie Roush, our star outfielder, was holding out and threatening to quit the game.

SECURED DAUBERT.

Then I got busy. A deal was engineered with Brooklyn whereby we secured Jake Daubert to play first base. Finding that Magee had determined to stand pat, and learning at the same time that Kopf had refused to report to Brooklyn, I got in touch with Wilbert Robinson and made a trade. I gave the holdout Magee for the holdout Kopf, after learning that Magee would be glad to play with Brooklyn and that Kopf was anxious to stay in Cincinnati.

A settlement was made with Rousch, and I then signed up the veteran Sherry Magee, completing the outfield. A hunt for a second baseman began and I settled upon Morris Rath as the man for the job, despite the fact that he had been discarded by the White Sox.

WORKED ON BATTERY.

Having recruited the infield and the outfield, my next thought was the battery. I needed a seasoned catcher and an experienced pitcher. Learning that Sallee was a Giant holdout I got in touch with John McGraw. I asked for Bill Rariden as well as Sallee, because Rariden had always appealed to me as a reliable and excellent backstop.

A deal was made. Then we went to toughest sort of [illegible]. The weather was miserable. That was a harder blow to the Reds than it would have been to almost any other team. I had a group of veterans, Daubert, Magee, Sallee, Rariden and others. They needed plenty of work under southern skies to get the kinks out of their muscles. And the skies that looked down upon us usually shed rain.

TRAINED EN ROUTE HOME.

Our real training was done en route from the camp to the opening date of the National League season. It was during those games where we got busy on teamwork and signals.

It was then that I was doing the work with my pitchers. I paid no attention to Sallee. I knew he would get in shape, that he needed no schooling from me. Nor did I spend time with Ray Fisher, the veteran whom we had secured from the Yankees. But I had my hands full with Reuther, Eller, Ring and Luque.

Reuther had been let out by the Cubs because he was wild and ineffective. It took time and patience to teach him control but he proved an apt pupil. A little change here and there in his style of delivery, the following of the few suggestions concerning change of pace—and Reuther was one of the most brilliant performers in the National League. I spent a lot of time with him but not so much as I have spent with other pitchers who never even remotely approached Reuther in hurling ability.

Jimmy Ring had been turned aside by Wilbert Robinson. And the baseball world knows that Robinson is a genius in the developing of twirlers. But I was fortunate enough to find a few things in Ring which Robinson overlooked. Eller, another discarded player, required no more time in development work. And the same thing goes with Luque, the youthful Cuban.

A little pat on the back, a few words of encouragement and a little advice was all that the boys needed.

A Remarkable Perfume

AMBERGRIS, used as a basis for perfumery, was first found, an unattractive mass, floating on the sea. It is believed by some to be the morbid secretion of the liver of a sperm whale. It is described as a fatty, waxy substance, but even in its crude state exhaling a pleasant odor.

The Secret of Charm Is the Root of All Wisdom; and in Winning a Man, a Grain of Diplomacy Exceedeth a Thousand Coquetries

Copyright, 1919, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

MY Daughter, Beauty is vain and Poses are deceitful; but the secret of CHARM is the root of all wisdom.

And, in the winning of hearts, a grain of diplomacy exceedeth a thousand coquetries.

Lo, of men there be seventy times seven varieties; but their hearts are all built upon the same model, even as letter boxes, and she that discovereth the pass key shall enter wheresoever she listeth.

Go to! The race is not to the beautiful, nor the prize to the brilliant. Therefore seek NOT to dazzle a man, but disarm him with innocence, amuse him with nonsense, flatter him with incense, and, above all, treat him with COMMON SENSE!

Be kissable—but NOT easily kissed! Be sweet—but not cloying.

Be tender—but not fervent. Be cordial—but not gushing.

For more love hath been strangled to death with embraces than hath ever been frozen to death with indifference.

As a small boy dreadeth soap in the eyes, as a cat hateth a shower bath, so doth a man dread a SCENE and flee from hysterics.

Verily, verily, beauty may be bought at the druggist's and knowledge may be acquired from books, but understanding is rarer among women than radium, and diplomacy is more effective than a love potion.

And she that possesseth these, though she be plainer than a Monday dinner, shall be a winner of hearts and a drawer of glances.

And women shall marvel among themselves, saying:

"What DO men see in her?"

Chop up a quarter of a pound of fat pork. Melt it down, adding four ounces of onions chopped fine, and fry them with the pork without coloring. Then add one and one-half pounds of potatoes cut in half-inch squares, a pound of peeled and halved tomatoes, pressed out and cut in small squares; one ounce of chopped parsley, seventy-five medium sized clams, removing the hard part, and chopping them very fine, the clam juice, and a bunch of celery. Let the whole boil until the potatoes are cooked. Remove the celery, add a little white pepper and thyme leaves. Should the clam juice not be sufficient, add a little water. Serve some pilot crackers on the side.

At the left a model particularly suitable for the older woman or the woman with a somewhat stout figure. The knee-length tunic smoothes curves into long, graceful lines, and is equally becoming to the naturally tall and slender person. The tunic is of georgette, embroidered in self-color, worn over an underdress of an excellent quality of satin, which is repeated in bands on the sleeves and tunic. The girdle is a silk cord. It comes in brown, navy and black. To the right a model in velours, cut with the new, slightly-bloused back and the very narrow string belt; green, navy, brown.

The Love Gambler

A New Serial by a Famous Writer

CHAPTER LIX.

Copyright, 1919, Star Company

DURING the two days following the events just recorded Desiree Leighton avoided seeing David Smith.

The first day, Wednesday, she did her errands on foot. She had spoken a brief negative to her father's question as to whether she would need the car or not.

"I need the exercise," she said. "I shall walk instead of riding."

The next morning dawned raw and cloudy. That in itself gave her an excuse for remaining indoors. But she must face Smith this evening, for he was to drive her to a dance she must attend. She felt much embarrassment at again meeting the man to whom she had sent the unexplained telegram. She made a timid suggestion to her father.

"It seems hardly necessary to have the limousine out just for me this evening. Dad, I can go to the Burnhams' dance in a taxi."

"Why?" the parent demanded.

"Because," she tried to explain, "it seems rather selfish for me to keep Smith and the car out the entire evening, doesn't it?"

"No more selfish than it has always been," her father smiled teasingly. "That is what a car is for, my dear, to use when needed. Smith will come to take you to the Burnhams', then go back for you at any hour you name."

"Then make it 12 o'clock promptly, please—if you will kindly give the order," she said.

"You are planning to come home early, considering that the affair is a big dance, are you not?" Samuel Leighton demurred.

"I am feeling a bit tired," she admitted.

"It's all right if you are coming back early by preference. But I will not have you humoring a chauffeur and cutting your fun short so as not to keep him up late. That would be absolutely ridiculous."

Desiree said no more, but a slow flush crept to her face.

She wished she need not see the chauffeur for a while. She also wished that she dared ask her father if he had made [illegible] Smith, [illegible] had but taken her into his confidence.

Samuel Leighton, as was his custom, escorted his daughter down the steps to the waiting car. [illegible] The chauffeur touched his hat politely in response to Desiree's murmured "Good evening!"

"Wouldn't you like me to accompany Smith when he returns for you?" Leighton asked as he saw Desiree comfortably seated.

He had a vague sensation of anxiety about her and wished that she had been in the habit of having her maid go with her to evening functions. She was paler than usual, and her eyes looked very wide and dark.

"Why, dad," she smiled, "what an idea! I shall be all right."

"Yes, I am sure Smith will see that you get there and back safely," the parent said loudly enough for the driver to hear.

What ailed her, she wondered. Only a few weeks ago this dance would have been a source of genuine joy to her. Yet now that the war was over and all conditions much happier than they had been for the past four years, she had been conscious of a sense of vague depression and a desire to be alone.

For, do what she might, her thoughts would turn to the man who was her father's chauffeur.

She suspected that he was in danger and that she could not help him. It was for this reason she had urged him to stay in New York a little longer, for she knew that his sudden departure would confirm her father in his doubts of him.

Yet how conscientiously her parent was striving to be fair and to give the matter of the missing pendant fair judgment!

Lesson in Scientific Complexion Renewing

Everyone has a beautiful skin underneath the one exposed to view. Bear that in mind and it will be easier to understand the correct principle in acquiring a lovely complexion. Nature is constantly shedding the top skin in flaky particles like dandruff, only much smaller in size. In abnormal conditions or in advancing age, these particles are not shed as rapidly as in robust youth. The longer they remain the more soiled or faded they become—that's the immediate cause of a "bad complexion."

It has been discovered that ordinary mercolized wax, to be had at any drug store, will absorb these worn-out particles. The absorption, while hastening Nature's work, goes on gradually enough to cause no inconvenience. In a week or two the transformation is complete. The fresh, healthy-hued, youthful underskin is then wholly in evidence. You who are not satisfied with your complexions should get an ounce of mercolized wax and try this treatment. Use the wax nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.—Advertisement

A Mystery Story of New York Life

AN INTENSELY THRILLING AND SWIFTLY MOVING PLOT

New Master Criminal, Head of the "Society for the Redistribution of Superfluous Wealth," Terrorizes Millionaires

By Arthur Somers Roche.

Whose novels have placed him in the front rank as a writer of detective stories

The Action So Far

John Hastings, multi-millionaire and captain of industry, has employed Robert Allaire, a young lawyer, to do some work for him. A criminal impersonates Allaire and reveals himself as a member of "The Society for the Redistribution of Superfluous Wealth." He threatens Hastings, who attempts to summon aid. The visitor shoots him dead and escapes. Arrested later, Allaire proves a perfect alibi. Police Commissioner Blake is puzzled. Meanwhile three other millionaires are slain. Allaire receives a note from the society and talks over his arrest and the letter with Allison Courtney, his fiancee. Blake is replaced by Heenan, a famous detective. Allaire and Blake join forces to work on the case unofficially. The threatened millionaires decide to pay the master criminal a huge sum to secure their safety. Allison discovers a burglar at her uncle's safe. Millionaire Tobey is kidnaped by the dread society. Heenan calls on Wilkins and is shown a threatening letter.

"TO make the matter look good he had to be one to refuse, for he had to be kidnapped."

"Why?" asked the dazed Wilkins, unable to follow the swift, triumphant reasoning of the detective.

"Why? Because the murderer has to receive the money, don't he? Half a million is too much to let an accomplice collect. One big brain is behind this. He may have helpers, but if he has, he isn't letting them handle that kind of coin. Tobey had to be on the spot to get the money. So he plans his refusal, fakes his kidnaping—Why to get Courtney scared he visited him last night, and——"

But this was not the time for boasting. Heenan dropped the tone of self-laudation and got down to cases. He advanced threateningly upon Wilkins.

"I want this matter to go through without a hitch," he snapped. "You follow direction exactly as this letter orders. Understand? And not a word to a living soul about what I've said. Mind! And this afternoon I'll turn back your money, and I'll have this bird Tobey behind the bars. Clever he is, but"——

Swift Orders

Heenan smiled deprecatingly, as one who knew of a cleverer man, but was forbidden by modesty to give him a name. One last injunction to Wilkins to keep his mouth tightly closed and do as the letter commanded, and Heenan dashed out of the house. He spoke to the two men outside of the Wilkins mansion.

"When Wilkins goes to Jacob Curran's office today I want you boys to beat it up town—fast. Get on Central Park West near Sixty-ninth street. A touring car will come along, a guy will stop it and get a parcel from the driver. That guy is the man we want. Use your guns—get him! And one of you make the rounds of all the other men we're looking after. Give the same instructions to the operatives there. Have some of them sauntering in the park, some in areaways——"

"You want us to quit guarding them when they go to Curran's office? Will there be reliefs down town to take our places?"

"We won't need any," said Heenan triumphantly. "The guy we want will be in the park. Now mind: no loitering where you can be seen. Get into houses—hallways, some of you. But I'm leaving to you boys to make the arrest. I'll have a hundred plain-clothed bulls at every corner on the Columbus avenue side, I'll have autos in the park; I'll have— Get busy! Pass the word."

But Heenan never went off at half-cock. That Tobey was the mysterious murderer seemed conclusive to Heenan, but unless Tobey knew a lot of Allaire's business Tobey could not be the man wanted, and his kidnaping must be a genuine affair. Heenan drove directly to Allaire's apartment, and roused that young man from the heavy sleep that had claimed him since Blake's departure the night before.

"Allaire," he snapped at the pajama-clad young lawyer, "do you know Eliot Tobey? Does he know you?"

"Yes," he answered.

"Has he ever seen your handwriting?"

"On receipts which I gave him and Hastings for money with which I settled the matter. Why?"

"And could Tobey by any means have known that you were going to the theatre the night before last?"

"Why, of course; he saw me as I entered; he bowed to me, and I returned the bow. He was there alone waiting for a friend, I imagined. Why?"

But Heenan's exultation had mastered him now. How simple, how absurdly simple the matter was!

Allaire guessed much from the detective's manner.

"Good Lord, you don't mean to say that Tobey——"

"I don't mean to say anything," snapped Heenan. "I've said too much. Hear me? Not a word from you!" He made for the door, but Allaire called him back.

"I want to tell you what Blake and I did last night," said the lawyer.

Heenan restrained his impatience long enough to listen to the account of Allaire's search of the Star's files and Blake's investigation at Jepner's. He was angered to think that he'd forgotten to use such reasoning, useless though it had proved to be.

"Amateurs!" he sneered. "But keep off now; I've just about got my man landed!" Then the conceit, which was his failing, prompted him to tell Allaire what had happened last night and was planned for the day. "You know Tobey; if you were lookin for him, you might be able to spot him in disguise. No man can disguise himself from people that know him, if they're looking for him."

"The guy Tobey knows that; he only wears a disguise when he knows that no one is expecting anything like that. But if you're watching for him, you'd spot him. You might go up to the Plaza for breakfast and from there sort of saunter over to Central Park West. You might help. But carry a gun. You have my permission."

Allaire Agrees

Allaire, excited, agreed, and won Heenan's reluctant consent to have Blake accompany him. Heenan wished to share none of the glory that would accrue to him from the capture of the murderer, but he realized that the murdered was clever and that he might escape from the cordon of detectives which would be around the neighborhood named in the society's letter to Wilkins, and that Allaire, alone, single-handed, if he happened to see him, would not, perhaps, be able to handle him. Then the commissioner left for headquarters, first telling the operatives shadowing Allaire to cease work.

On the way downtown it occurred to him that, for such a clever man as the murderer—Tobey, Heenan preferred to call him now—the plan for the receipt of the half-million dollars was fraught with danger. A doubt came to him. Was there something fishy about it? no; the murderer didn't know everything.

Yes; fancied security had rendered Tobey careless. Heenan was smiling when he found the Mayor awaiting his at headquarters.

Mayor Phinney's dislike for Heenan was accentuated by the new commissioner's rudeness to his predecessor and friend of the Mayor yesterday. And a reporter had just informed Phinney at his house of the just discovered kidnaping of Tobey. Heenan, then, had failed! The Mayor was cold in greetings.

"Heenan," he said "you don't seem to do any better than Blake. I understand that one of the men you were guarding was kidnaped last night. Your men let the kidnaper take Tobey away under their eyes. Understand that they were men of your agency, not of the police force."

Heenan glared.

"Hold your horses, Mr. Mayor. I couldn't assign real detectives to guard those men. That would take twenty detectives—real ones. Why, how many real detectives do you think there are in this whole country?"

Ready for the Criminal

"I'll show you one before the day's over," he answered. "I can't be blamed because my men fall down."

"That's what Blake said," retorted the Mayor. "And you have the same excuse. I'm going to telegraph the Governor, ask him to put the militia in control——"

"And gum the game when I've got my man ready for a cell," snarled Heenan. "I'll have him behind the bars inside of twenty-four hours, maybe this afternoon."

"You know him? His real identity? Who is he?"

"I'm not telling that," snapped Heenan. "You take my word for it; you hold your horses. I said yesterday it'd take forty-eight hours; that's all the time I want. You give me until tomorrow—that's all I ask."

And as the Mayor had no desire to call out the National Guard, indeed, didn't deem it probable that the Governor would accede to such a request, he yielded to Heenan's request. He left headquarters, and Heenan called into conference his subordinate officers on the force. To them he gave swift and clear orders.

Combing Won't Rid Hair Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Pile Sufferers! Clever Ohio Chemist Says This Great Prescription Taken Internally Has Never Failed

Even chronic cases of 20 to 30 years' standing, with profuse bleeding, have been completely relieved in from three to ten days.

No discovery of recent years in the field of medicine has caused such a stir amongst the medical profession as the recent discovery that piles can be successfully treated and relieved at home by a wonderful prescription known to druggists as Miro Pile Remedy.

It has been proved that so-called external remedies applied or inserted into the rectum cannot cure piles and at the best only give temporary relief. This is also true of surgical operations which simply remove them after formation, but in no wise acts on the source of the trouble.

This prescription although taken internally, is not digested in the stomach, but is rapidly passed on unchanged to the intestines, in a short time reaching the exact place where by its soothing, healing action, it first allays all inflammation and then by direct contact with all ulcers and piles, causes them to heal and disappear forever.

It is positively marvelous how speedily it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two or three days at most, even in cases with profuse bleeding that have resisted all known treatments and operation, really wonderful results have been accomplished.

The author of this amazing discovery desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Miro Pile Remedy decisively conquers even in the worst cases and he has instructed the W. B. Hunt Co., in Cambridge and Roxbury Crossing, and druggists all over the country, to guarantee it, in every case of blind, bleeding or protruding piles.

IMPORTANT—What is known as itching piles are not piles in the true sense of the word, although this condition may accompany a true case of piles. For this condition Miro Pile Ointment has been prepared, as in such cases it is not necessary to take the internal prescription.

INTEREST LAGS IN MILK COST INQUIRY

Hardly a dozen persons attended the hearing of the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life regarding the milk problem, held at the State House, and none of these responded when those representing milk consumers were invited to speak.

Cost figures submitted to the Commission were based on statistics compiled two years ago and were rejected by General Sherburne, chairman, as failing to represent the conditions now operative.

FIXED BY COMPETITION.

Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, a former Federal milk commissioner for this district, gave the Commission information based on statistics gathered in 1917, and said the costs of production now are probably considerably higher than they were in that year.

He put the average cost of producing a quart of milk in August, 1918, as $.078; in October, $.082, and in November and December of that year, $.0975. He said the price of milk in Massachusetts is fixed by competition alone.

Richard Pattee, managing director of the New England Milk Producers' Association, an organization of dairy farmers, explained the plan of the association, which has about 20,000 members. He said the price of milk is fixed by collectiv ebargaining between the producers and the distributers, and figured that the average net price paid the farmers for milk last December was $.0823.

NEED 12 CENTS FOR PROFIT.

W. P. Davis, an expert employed by the Producers' Association, said the farmers would have to receive 12.37 cents a quart for milk to make a profit. He gave cost and figures to sustain his statement.

Chairman Sherburne expressed the opinion that his figures were of little use to the commission, because Davis admitted that they were based on the cost of doing business in Massachusetts two years ago, although the larger part of the milk used in Boston where production costs are lower than in Massachusetts.

Demands His Money Back After Filing Marriage Notice

Gardner, Sept. 26.—Town Clerk B. J. Holden is recounting a recent experience which has not had its parallel during his long term of office.

Seeking to file a marriage intention, a man entered his office and after going through the usual routine, handed over a dollar and left apparently in a happy frame of mind.

A little later the same man returned, accompanied by a woman, and with a look of sadness stated he had changed his mind about getting married, explaining that he assumed a woman's privilege, and demanded his dollar back. He got it and the pair left arm in arm.

ROMAN CHURCH HIERARCHS TO MEET YEARLY

Washington, Sept. 26.—The Catholic hierarchy of the United States closed its two days' session after having determined upon a future course of administration, which, acording to Cardinal Gibbons, marks the beginning of a new era in the Catholic Church in this country.

The bishops decided that the hierarchy, which until this session had not convened since 1884, shall meet at a place and date to be selected.

Announcement of the appointment of a standing administrative committee was made at the conclusion of the session. This committee comprises Archbishops Hanna of San Francisco, Dougherty of Philadelphia, Dowling of St. Paul, and Bishops Canevin of Pittsburgh, Muldoon of Rockford, Ill., Russell of Charleston, S. C., and Schrembs of Toledo.

This committee will establish bureaus of education, press and literature, social service, foreign and home missions and Catholic lay societies. They will be responsible directly to the hierarchy and will be under episcopal direction.

The results of the deliberations of the hierarchy will be made public in a pastoral letter to be issued within a few months through the pulpits. It will be signed by the bishops who attended the session. This letter will deal with the various important questions of the problems of the day now "calling for the attention and sympathy of Catholic authority."

Among the matters discussed in detail by the bishops were the preparation of a satisfactory Catholic census, the early issuance of a Catholic directory and the application of a new code of canon law with its bearing on American law and American conditions.

Cardinal Gibbons, the sole survivor of the plenary council held in Baltimore in 1884, presided at the sessions of the hierarchy.

HOLT TO OPPOSE MAHONY ON LEAGUE

Hamilton Holt of New York, editor of the Independent, who has frequently spoken on the same platform with ex-President Taft in favor of a League of Nations, is coming to Massachusetts to enter into a series of three debates on the League of Nations covenant. He will have as his opponent Thomas H. Mahony, Boston attorney, who has accepted the invitation of the Massachusetts Branch of the League for the Preservation of American Independence, to oppose him.

The debates are expected to bring out new phases and angles of the proposed League of Nations, and to define more definitely what the adoption of the proposed Wilsonian treaty would have upon the United States. The three debates or discussions will be held at Hyannis on Sunday, October 5; New Bedford on Monday, October 6, and at Fall River on Tuesday, October 7. The meetings in each case will begin at 8 p. m.

WANT DEBATE IN BOSTON.

Keen interest attaches to the meeting in debate of the New York publicist and the Boston lawyer, and already efforts are being made to have a fourth debate held in Boston on the order of the memorable intellectual tussle between President Lowell of Harvard and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. Since the Lodge-Lowell debate new phases of the League of Nations covenant have developed and there are new points to be discussed.

Mr. Mahony is fitted to take the negative issue in the forthcoming arguments, for he has traveled throughout the Commonwealth during the past few months delivering speeches against the terms of the proposed league.

Mr. Mahony, in his speeches, has taken exception to Articlces IX., X. and XI. of the proposed charter. At various times he has demonstrated that little nations like Ireland would lose by the projected international agreement and would "be on the outside looking in."

Mr. Mahony is a leader among the younger lawyers in Boston, a graduate of Boston Latin School, '02; Harvard University, '06 ,and Boston University Law School, '09. He is engaged in general practice in the State and Federal courts. He was presiding officer at the meeting in Fenway Park in honor of Dr. De Valera, president of the Irish Republic last July, and is recognized as an authority in Boston on the legal and constitutional aspects of the League of Nations as it stands.

HOLT WELL KNOWN.

Editor Holt is no stranger to Boston or Massachusetts, and his prolific and illuminating writings have been widely read. He is a Yale graduate, '94; taking post-graduate studies in sociology and economics at Columbia University from 1894 to 1897. The degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by Ursinus College, Pa., in 1915, and that of Litt. D. at Wooster College in 1916.

LAWRENCE ATTORNEYS FIGHT OVER PROPERTY

Lawrence, Sept. 26.—A lively mixup of attorneys and property owners in which fisticuffs were exchanged occured before a crowd of several hundred spectators in an Essex street alleyway. It was said that the attorneys for one side of the case came to take legal possession of a piece of real estate and planned by so doing to prevent the owners from making repairs should they desire.

Remonstrance caused a large sapling to be levelled as a battering ram against the door and it was smashed in. The legal process here ended and the remainder of the controversy was taken out under the Queensberry rules.

SINN FEIN LEADER CLEARED OF SEDITION

Dublin, Sept. 26.—Patrick O'Keefe, general secretary of the Sinn Fein and member of Parliament from North Cork, was acquitted by a court-martial before which he had been arraigned on a charge of sedition.

Police witnesses testified that O'Keefe had delivered speeches on behalf of the Irish republic and urged Youths to drill for military service.

Ought to Be an Organized Drive to Raise Pay of Clergymen

The wages of our school teachers are too low all over the country. Gradually, unconsciously, the fairest gem in the diadem of American democracy, the public school education, has been losing its lustre in the eye of the American people. The rise of great swollen private fortunes and a thousand other things have contributed to the neglect of public education and of the school teachers.

The War Department's records show that 25 per cent. of the draft army, examined by the War Department's agents, were unable to read and understand a newspaper or to write letters home. What a staggering blow to American sense of self-sufficiency! This is more than twice the illiteracy of Germany or of Australia or of New Zealand. Today we are not paying our teachers anything like fair wages.

In the same way we are neglecting our churches and underpaying our clergymen. The school teachers' wages can be raised by the government. The clergymen's wages must be raised by voluntary contributions. We have had drives for money for all kinds of purposes in this country during the last five years and by those drives we have raised hundreds of millions of dollars to be spent in foreign lands wisely and foolishly as the case may vary. We have already loaned ten billion dollars to the imperialistic governments of Europe, now wasting their substance and their blood in the pursuit of spoil which is in itself a violation of all the principles for which we are supposed to have fought the war. President Wilson is proposing to make these loans five or six billions more to nations which are maintaining and even increasing their military establishments, which are interfering with and denying the right of self-determination in two-thirds the population of Europe, which is engaged in twenty-seven petty wars at this very moment. All for loot.

And yet we have no money to pay our school teachers and our clergymen! It is high time that we insist that charity begins OCCASIONALLY at home and to increase our school teachers' wages by acts of government and to organize a drive for voluntary contributions to a clergymen's fund—a drive which shall be as extensive and as effective as some of those great money-raising organizations which took millions from kind-hearted American people and spent it in foreign lands to relieve foreign governments from an expensive duty and enabled them to spend their money in militaristic enterprises.

Significant Results Shown in the Primaries

The Massachusetts primaries Tuesday were very interesting and also rather significant in their results. There was an extraordinary Democratic attendance and Mr. Long received a tremendous majority against a very good man in ex-Governor Foss.

When a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor publicly repudiates the policy on which the Democratic President proposes to stand or fall, as Mr. Long repudiated the League of Nations and so repudiating that policy is nominated by a plurality of more than five to one in a great primary, it is significant.

The size of the primaries indicate an awakened democratic interest. It indicates a stirring in the democracy which forbodes ill to the Republican organization and their candidates this Fall, other things being equal.

Since the establishment of the Boston American in Massachusetts this Commonwealth has not been a sure Republican State. In the last fourteen years it has gone Democratic six times and might have gone seven or eight times if Governor Douglas had not declined a renomination.

There is a great unrest in the rank and file of the Republican party. The spirit which animated the Republican masses under Lincoln and Stewart and the great Abolitionists never really changed. They only lacked a leader, which they found temporarily in Roosevelt. The metamorphosis of the Republican party has been in its organization and leadership rather than in its rank and file. On a policy itself the Republican masses are as progressive as the Democratic masses in this State, where the Democrats are really democratic and infinitely more progressive than Democrats in those States where the Democrats are not democratic.

So, too, the masses of the Democratic party are bitterly dissatisfied with its leadership in Washington. They believe that they have been betrayed on every hand since the close of the war. They believe that the international bankers and satellites are now the invisible government at Washington. They were shocked to find that the Treaty of Peace was in the hands of Wall Street at the very moment that the Senate was demanding it and it was being refused, though the Senate has equal authority with the President concerning the making of treaties under the Constitution.

They have seen the great democratic right of free speech and free press flouted and destroyed by a Democratic administrator, even though it was Jefferson's contest for the right of free speech and free press and free assembling that gave the Democratic party its first victory 120 years ago. They have seen their President stooping to vituperation and misrepresentation in defence of a treaty and a covenant which betrays American interests and American traditions in every line and word. They have seen the President, whom they had put into office, publicy denouncing as disloyal men who say that they will not vote for a treaty which gives Great Britain six votes and America only one in the council of the nations.

This and a hundred other violations of the Democratic principles by the Democratic leaders in Washington have wrenched the masses of the party from their old moorings and set them drifting toward the progressive rank and file of the Republican party who are dissatisfied to see their party constantly on the side of special privilege and of predatory wealth.

When labor realizes that direct action will not get them the industrial democracy they seek, but that it must be achieved under the forms of law, as the farmers under the Non-partisan League are achieving their objects, they too are likely to join the ranks of the disillusioned in the formation of a new party.

Dear K. C. B.—A New York gentleman whom you have mentioned many times in your column and whom you evidently consider a friend, has been sending a column done after your style to the Detroit Journal. Most of it is very rotten, but there is an occasional flash that reads very much to me like some of the articles you wrote while on the Pacific coast and afterward published in book form.

Because it is unlikely you see the Detroit Journal, I am sending you this information. Both the Journal and yourself are being imposed upon. I don't care anything about the Journal, but I think you should get after your New York friend. Sincerely, JOHN ——.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 16.

MY DEAR John.
* * *
I STARTED this stuff.
* * *
JUST SIX years ago.
* * *
AND EVER since then.
* * *
ALL OVER the land.
* * *
MEN HAVE sprung up.
* * *
AND BECOME imitators.
* * *
AND SOME were good.
* * *
AND SOME were bad.
* * *
AND I used to get sore.
* * *
AND WRITE letters to people.
* * *
AND BITE my nails.
* * *
AND LIE awake nights.
* * *
AND THEN I discovered.

THAT EVEN the good ones.
* * *
JUST LASTED so long.
* * *
AND THEN petered out.
* * *
AND I made up my mind.
* * *
THAT I'D worry no more.
* * *
AND I found one fellow.

WHO WAS stealing stuff.
* * *
OUT OF one of my books.
* * *
AND I sent him another.
* * *
OF A new edition.
* * *
OF BRAND new stuff.
* * *
AND MARKED the pages.

THAT I thought were good.
* * *
AND IT must have been.
* * *
HE WAS a sensitive gentleman.
* * *
BECAUSE HE and his column.
* * *
WENT OUT of business.
* * *
JUST TWO days later.
* * *
AND ANOTHER gentleman.
* * *
UP IN Maine somewhere.
* * *
WAS USING my initials.
AND WRITING a column.
* * *
AND I wrote and asked him.
* * *
WHERE HE got the initials.
* * *
AND HE answered me.

THAT HE'D picked them out.

FROM THE alphabet.
* * *
AND I sent him a book.

AND WROTE on the fly leaf.
* * *
THAT WHEN he got tired.
* * *
AND COULD'NT write anything.
* * *
TO USE some of mine.
* * *
AND HE wrote and told me.
* * *
HE'D THOUGHT it all over.

AND WAS much obliged.
* * *
BUT HE'D killed his column.

AND ANYWAY, John.
* * *
IF IT isn't all right.

WHATEVER THEY get for it.

How to Kill a Nation
It Seems Difficult
Foolish Human Heart
Wise Japanese

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919)

Mr. Morgenthau says: "Germany came through this war a perfect dynamo of strength." Her power, he says, is as great as ever, and her sixty-five million people have been hardened by war. Perhaps the wars are not exactly over, in spite of peace terms that take German colonies, German land, German ships, German money, and forbid German military effort. It is difficult, however, to say what can be done to reassure those like Mr. Morgenthau, still worried about Germany. There is some comfort in the fact that no more Hohenzollerns run Germany. In their place are serious harness makers, who have, perhaps, had enough of bloodshed.

It is difficult to see what more the Allies could have done. Old fashioned methods, selling the able bodied men into slavery, carrying off the younger women, knocking young children on the head, are no longer tolerated. It is too late in history for Marshal Foch to send to Paris the message that Cromwell sent from Ireland: "I shot every tenth man. The rest I sent to the galleys. The monks I knocked on the head."

War is as horrible as ever, but has lost its efficiency in killing off nations.

Even Cromwell, as you may learn by reading the newspapers, did not succeed in killing off Ireland or her willingness to fight.

Hope blossoms forever in the foolish human heart. New York city discovered a glorious path to freedom from the graft of the coal monopoly.

Instead of coal, oil will be used for fuel, oil being cheaper than coal. Oil, like coal, lies in the ground, nobody made it, but somebody regulates its price. Increase the demand for oil and somebody will soon fix the price so that oil heat will cost more than coal heat.

When gasoline was an almost by-product of the petroleum business, newspapers bought it for five or six cents a gallon to wash ink from type. The gasoline engine was invented and the price climbed.

Gasoline being dear, somebody invented farm machinery to be run with kerosene, costing only eight cents a gallon. Now kerosene costs eighteen to twenty cents a gallon, and going up.

No problem is solved by shifting your fuel. You must shift the power of taxation from private individuals to the government.

Japanese gentlemen arrive, thoughtful and able. The percentage of efficiency in Japan is high. One gentleman, Prince Kanohe, says the peace league is all right; Shantung will be adjusted by and by. Japan would give Shantung back to China right away only the Japanese are afraid that Germans might get another foothold in Shantung. That is touching and convincing.

Mr. Kwickawa, manager of the Nippon Steamship Co., says Japan holds third place among nations in maritime power and is going after first place. His company is building at the rate of 600,000 tons a year. The Japanese usually do what they undertake.

Mr. Kwickawa will find assistance in America, where a generous government having taxed its citizens to build ships, is now selling them below cost, with permission to put them under foreign flags. The more disgrace to that government.

With this country scattering its ships among home grafters and foreign nations, and Japan concentrating at home, American shipping will soon be a joke compared to the Japanese. That ought to interest the government of the United States more than the problems of Armenia, Siberia, England or Czecho-Slovakia.

Americanizing Aliens Makes Democracy Safe at Home

The campaign to Americanize those residing in America and intending to make it their permanent home, who cannot speak or read or write English and know nothing about our institutions, is now going on in spots with satisfactory progress.

Nothing is more needed to give us a homogeneous people than this Americanization work. If democracy is to be kept safe at home, we must do the work. There must not be in America an undigested, un-American, submerged element who see only the worst phase of our institutions, who meet only with the exceptions to the rule of democracy here when their disillusionment leads to violent reaction against our institutions. They came to take the hard and underpaid jobs, to be the "hewers of wood and drawers of water"—a work unattractive enough under the best conditions. They come to us ignorant even in their mother tongue and unable to speak our language or read or write any language. Their very helplessness leads to their abuse by many of their employers and by their graded superiors from superintendent to foreman. Moreover, in industrial disputes, especially, the fact that they are "foreigners" unable to defend themselves against abuse tempts public officials, under pressure from their industrial opponents, to yield them less protection than to other classes in the community, because public condemnation of the abuse of the rights of foreigners is not so keen as it ought to be. Our people are not as alive, as they ought to be, to the principle that a right violated against a person of a poor foreign-speaking Pole or an Italian or Greek or Russian Jew, is a right potentially violated against an American citizen. So long as a very foreign name spells poverty and dirt and ignorance, just so long they will fail to appeal to the imagination of the American people and will not receive the same protection from public opinion and, therefore, the same protection from the laws that other classes in the community receive.

A young reporter rushed up not long ago to one of the ablest newspaper editors in America and told him breathlessly that a brutal murder had just been committed in a certain place under dramatic circumstances. The editor said, "What is the name of the woman killed?" The name was given. It was a foreign name. "What is the name of the murderer?" asked the editor. That name proved to be a foreign name. "Oh, hell!" said the editor, "give the story a couple of sticksfull," and to the astonishment of the reporter, he changed the subject.

So the foreigner will not see democracy working at its best. When they do see our institutions it is on the occasions when those institutions function contrary to the principles of democracy. Thus the vicious circle is completed.

The "American All" recruiting attachment has been here this week exhibiting what can be done in a few weeks of intensive training of a foreign-born American who can neither read nor write English or speak our language. It is a very interesting result which this branch of the army has achieved and it would be educational to us all if we took it in.

Plan New Fuel Supply

THE fuel supply of this old earth of ours is fast dwindling.

Coal, wood, oil, the three great sources of heat and power which exist today, have certain definite limits, and these limits are being approached at an alarming rate. When they are exhausted, what will happen to the world?

And so scientists have begun to wonder why the enormous amount of electricity generated by our earth cannot be harnessed and utilized for the benefit of the human race. The inhabitants of Mars already have done this, in the belief of some of our leading savants. Why not man?

The Magazine Section of next week's Boston Sunday Advertiser contains a full page devoted to an analysis of this idea. Be sure and get your copy.

Captain Alfred Dreyfus, an officer of the French army, came before the public notice some years ago when he was placed on trial to answer the terrible charge of treason. He was accused of having sold French military secrets to German secret agents.

Dreyfus was a Jew. For that reason his doom was sealed. He narrowly escaped with his life, and was sentenced to imprisonment on Devil's Island, a penal settlement off the coast of French Guiana. It was a horrible fate, especially for one whose guilt had never really been proved. Even when later circumstances made it almost certain that he was innocent, the same forces which had fought for his conviction still battled to keep him in disgrace.

Then came the war. Dreyfus was given command of a small fort near Paris. In those fatal days the services of every man of military training were needed.

The other day Dreyfus' commanding officer pinned on the breast of the former convict the cross of the Legion d'Honneur, the highest honor with which France rewards her gallant sons. Dreyfus had redeemed himself. You will want to read the fascinating story of his battle for honor. It appears, with illustrations, in the Magazine Section on Sunday. Let Your Skin Breathe

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial on influenza is significant and useful; but readers do not know how to live to keep well, and most of the advice from headquarters is of a sort to lead them astray, especially as to clothing. We are urged to bundle up well so as not to catch cold; when, in fact, "colds" leading to influenza and pneumonia are due chiefly to smothering the skin with clothing. All who learn that the principal thing in preventing disease is to give the body all possible chance to breathe can't be afraid, for they know that they are immune. The skin is a breathing organ as truly as the "inner lungs"; its millions of blood-vessels are forever gasping for air under even the lightest of drapery and are completely smothered under many folds of clothing; hence the blood is cheated out of its normal supply of oxygen. Oxygen is "the mighty scavenger of the vital economy," and from lack of it the body clogs up with waste, and this is the principal cause of all the filth-diseases. I have been studying this question for the past thirty years, since the epidemic of 1888-9.

Of course, wrong and over-eating is averse to health; but a stomach ache or diarrohea will "cure" itself usually, while from skin-smothering there is no relief. It is far safer to shiver than sweat. Influenza epidemics always occur during unseasonably warm weather in Fall, Winter and Spring, when the people are dressed in cold weather clothing. Therefore, keep cool, give the skin air, and fear no danger. Winter before last, one of the coldest, a soldier was dying of pneumonia on ship board; the ship was torpedoed and the patient was rushed out nearly naked into an open boat, where he shivered and shook for hours. When, finally, they reached shore the patient scoffed at the idea of going to the hospital for, he said, "I'm all right"; and sure enough he was.
